LOSSES IN ST. JOHN WATERFRONT FIRE $10,000,000

War Debt Holiday Plan Wins Wide Support Nations Urged To Lose No Time Voting Moratorium Scheme

U.S. Government Holds Prompt Action Needed if Business is to Reap Full Benefit From Year's War Debt Holiday; With Britain and Germany Already Approving Hoover's Scheme, World Awaits Decision of France

BENNETT APPROVES NEW MOVES TO AID WORLD BUSINESS

Ottawa, June 22.—While declining to comment on the war debt holiday proposal of President Hoover, since it must be later dealt with officially by the government, Premier Bennett said in the Commons this afternoon he was in hearty accord with any proposals made by any country tending to alleviate present world conditions. He explained the proposals would entail a loss of $4,000,000 in revenue to Canada this year. He was referring to Canada's share of the annual reparations payments by Germany.

Canadian Press
Washington, June 22.—The United States administration today emphasized the necessity for prompt action by all of Germany's creditor nations if the proposal of President Hoover for a one-year moratorium on war debts and reparations were to have the desired effect.

Optimism ruled at the White House as the final response of European nations was awaited. There was some doubt as to the course of France, but it was believed the immediate response of the rest of the world as evidenced in rising stock markets would have a tremendous effect on France's final decision.

Secretary of State Stimson ruled out of the question a suggestion emanating from France for an international conference on the debt question.

The Secretary said such a conference was manifestly out of the question. If the President's proposal were to have a good effect on the debt question, since the whole proposal was postulated on speed.

The Secretary said it would wholly lose its economic effect if opened to tickling and debate.

CABLES BUSY
The interested nations, including Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany, Belgium, Romania, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia had been notified through diplomatic channels of the President's proposal, and the cable wires were humming today as the world governments exchanged views on the proposal.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, advised the State Department today of the "sympathetic attitude" of his government to the President's proposal. He had a lengthy conference with Under-Secretary of State Castle.

AUSTRIA'S ATTITUDE
Minister Prochlik of Austria called at the State Department and expressed the approval of his government of President Hoover's proposal. The minister said his government received with "wholehearted acceptance" the spontaneous step of the United States Government at this critical moment.

Paris, June 22.—The United States Embassy here today delivered to the Foreign Office President Hoover's proposal to postpone war debt and reparations payments for one year.

Sweepstakes Publicity Barred From Mails In United States

Associated Press
Washington, June 22.—The hand of the federal government was lifted today against United States participation in foreign sweepstakes, which are considered by officials a gamble which makes the Louisiana lottery of old seem a "mere pignus" in comparison. Solicitor Donnelly of the Post Office Department sought the co-operation of newspapers in a campaign already stated in response to protests filed literally feet on feet in department files.

"It is the intention of this department strictly to enforce the drastic provisions of the statute against lotteries," Donnelly said in a formal statement, "with a view to breaking up an unlawful practice which recently has grown to such huge proportions in United States cities, towns and villages as to border on a national plague."

"The House will not expect me to say more at present," said the Premier in conclusion.

Baron Kysant Is Sent Up For Trial In London

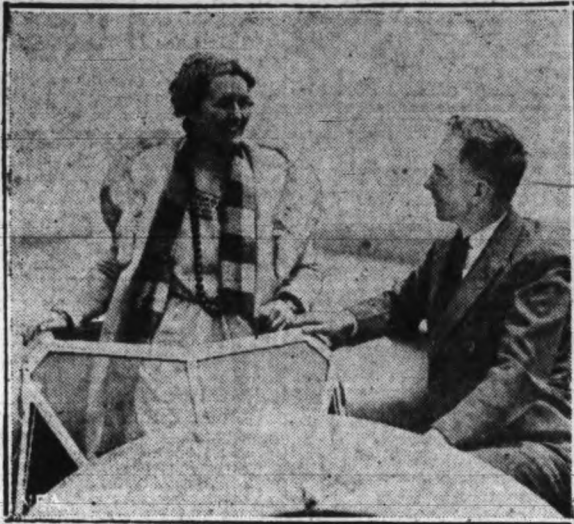

London, June 22.—Lord Kysant, former chairman of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company and long a figure in the shipping world of Great Britain, was committed for trial in criminal court here today on charges that he issued false reports on the company's condition.

Harold J. Morland, Royal Mail auditor, also was held for trial on the same allegations. The Lord Mayor came to these decisions after a series of lengthy hearings in the Guildhall police court. Both defendants asserted strongly they were innocent of the charges and both reserved their defense. They were allowed bail on their own recognizance of $25,000 each.

The case has claimed great public interest and the attention of the financial world in particular owing to the prominence of the accused and the nature of the accusation.

Saskatchewan Citizens May Have Election

United Farmers Demand Writing Off of One-quarter of All Farm Debts

If Independents Support Agrarians Resignations From Cabinet May Follow

Regina, June 22.—Political observers here see the Anderson Government faced with the possibility of an early election threat.

Next Thursday a deputation representing the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, will call on the provincial government and demand radical legislation, including writing off 25 per cent of farm debts and a steeply graduated income tax.

Penalty for refusal, the ultimatum declares, would be a general election, this is to be brought about by pressure on the Independent and Progressive members of the Anderson Government to resign.

PRESENT POSITION
The present line-up of the government bloc includes twenty-four Conservatives, six Independents and Five Progressives, with twenty-eight Liberals in opposition. The government thus has a total of thirty-five supporters to twenty-eight opposition.

Of the six Independents, there are possibly four who may support demands made by the U.F.C. observers say. In the Progressive ranks it is thought possible two might come on the side of the U.F.C. demands.

Thus, in the words of current slang the U.F.C. has say political observers put the Independent and Progressive members of the government "on the spot" and a political crisis faces Saskatchewan citizens.

Soricelli, shot twice at his tenement home, died yesterday in a hospital. The body of Charles Liedman, with two bullets in his chest, was found on a lonely road near Cold Spring, a few miles up the Hudson River. River police did both shootings, detective said.

Hillig-Hoiriss Plane Reaches Newfoundland From St. John, N.B., Bound For Denmark

Monoplane of Photographer and His Pilot Is Named Liberty

Harbor Grace, Nfld., June 22.—Otto Hillig, Liberty, N.Y., photographer and his pilot, Holger Hoiriss, hopped off from the local airport at 10:50 Atlantic daylight saving time this morning (5:50 a.m. Victoria time) for Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, from which point they plan to attempt transatlantic flight to Copenhagen, Denmark. The two flew here from New York last Friday and awaited favorable weather reports from Newfoundland before commencing the second leg of their flight.

St. John, N.B., June 22.—Otto Hillig, Liberty, N.Y., photographer and his pilot, Holger Hoiriss, hopped off from the local airport at 10:50 Atlantic daylight saving time this morning (5:50 a.m. Victoria time) for Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, from which point they plan to attempt transatlantic flight to Copenhagen, Denmark. The two flew here from New York last Friday and awaited favorable weather reports from Newfoundland before commencing the second leg of their flight.

St. John, N.B., June 22.—Fire which today swept the waterfront at Sand Point, on the western side of St. John Harbor, caused an estimated loss of $10,000,000. Included in the loss was federal government property valued at $3,500,000, most of it held by the St. John Harbor Commission, which was not insured.

There was no loss of life, but several people suffered burns, including two firemen whose truck sank through a weakened wharf top and was destroyed.

A battle of over five hours had been fought by firemen and volunteers before control of the fire was assured. A northwest wind helped the fighters as it directed the march of the flames toward the outer harbor and thus lessened the danger of the residential part of the western section of the city being destroyed.

A brief summary of the loss includes: Seven sheds, the immigration shed, the C.P.R. steamer Empress, C.P.R. grain elevator, harbor shed, Gloucester and a motor launch, a number of fishing schooners, between twenty and thirty freight cars with goods, a west side fire truck and several houses on Protection Street.

AFTER 54 YEARS
Newspapers on Saturday recalled that fifty-four years ago on that day, June 20, St. John was swept by a fire which took a toll of lives and destroyed property worth many millions, rendered thousands of people homeless and crippled many business houses.

To-day at a service club luncheon the speaker had chosen for his subject the disaster of 1877, and as he spoke fire was undoing the work of many years in saving the city from the facilities which had been built up at Sand Point.

By 1:30 p.m., practically the whole harbor commission facilities at West Saint John had been wiped out. The federal government immigration buildings were threatened by the spreading flames.

The fire had consumed sheds 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7, an old C.P.R. elevator and the Canadian baggage shed as well as many of the wharves. A steady offshore wind was blowing huge clouds of smoke seaward and wafting the flames from spreading toward the land side.

STARTED AT 11 A.M.
The fire was discovered about 11 a.m., burning on the wharf of No. 1. It spread rapidly and was soon devouring a wide area of the shipping district.

An alarm brought the west side fire apparatus to the scene, but when it was seen the fire was eating its way rapidly through wooden sheds and grain conveyors, a call was sent to the city department and all available fire fighting machines were hurried across the harbor.

At 11:30 flames had a strong grip on the harbor facilities. By noon the old wooden elevator was a mass of flames.

The C.P.R. steamship Empress, formerly of the Bay of Fundy St. John-Digby route, had taken fire. There were fifty tons of oil on board, it was reported, but firemen worked on the (Concluded on Page 2)

GRAF NORTH POLE FLIGHT IS CANCELLED AS NAUTILUS SLOW

SOME OF MEN BACK AT WORK AT SOOKE LAKE

Friedrichshafen, Germany, June 22.—Dr. Hugo Eckener today announced he had definitely abandoned the Graf Zeppelin North Pole flight in view of the delay encountered by the Wilkes submarine Nautilus.

Cork, Irish Free State, June 22.—The submarine Nautilus, under command of Sir Robert Wyke, arrived at the outer harbor here this morning in tow of the United States battleship Wyoming.

The arrival of the Nautilus concludes a gruelling seventeen-day trip across the Atlantic on the first lap of a projected undersea cruise to the North Pole. The vessel lost a member of the crew overboard even before it got underway.

The Nautilus left Provincetown, Mass., June 5, under its own power after extensive test runs along the coast. Things went smoothly for about ten days and then trouble began. One of the motors was disabled and the batteries ran low. The craft was taken in tow by the Wyoming a week ago when it still was 1,000 miles from its destination.

Subsequently the bridge and periscope were washed away by storms and the tow line parted. Towing gear was again rigged and the warship and submarine proceeded toward the British Isles at a snail's pace. Part of the crew of the Nautilus was taken sick.

The Great Chelsea Show

By JOHN HUTCHISON, F.R.H.S.

As usual, my horticultural friend in England has written me an account of the great spring flower show which took place on May 20 to 22 last.

He says the show was more brilliant than ever though the weather was cold, almost wintry. The arrangements were excellent. Col. Durham, the secretary of the Royal Horticultural Society, having introduced many needed improvements.

In the rock garden section there were a number of absentees, notably Captain Symonds Jeune, whose work has been so much admired of late years. Messrs. Hodson of Nottingham, who generally construct a wonderful stream, and Messrs. Wood of Taplow.

There were, however, two rock gardens of outstanding excellence. They are located side by side and form a wonderful contrast. One could not compare them because they were quite different in technique and character.

Col. Gavin Jones made a rock garden which one would call a study in sombre realism. My correspondent saw this garden in the making and he says: "I saw one great mass of granite after another built into the picture and the stark mass grew till I seemed to be watching a tragedy in the making. The first stone struck a note of sorrow and stone after stone with unrelenting logic carried the tragic theme to the end. The planting, however, brought life and color into the picture. The fresh green of the grass, the cool depths of the water and the airy grace of the flowers made the finished product literally take you by the throat."

AN INNOVATION IN GRANITE

Welsh granite was the material used, which is an innovation in rock gardening, as granite has always been considered a stone that is not suitable for the purpose. Col. Jones has discovered this and the grey was much admired. The planting was beautiful but very restrained.

The other rock garden was that of George G. Whitelegg and was built of Cheddar limestone. The picture represents a waterfall and stream surrounded on three sides with rock. From a photograph which I have seen, it would seem difficult to believe that such a garden could exist in the centre of London. The planting is restrained and most beautifully conceived.

Besides these two, Messrs. Puiham had a thoroughly workmanlike exhibit including a stream. Messrs. Bins showed a garden in Derbyshire Tufa stone, and Messrs. Gardener's garden was in dark sandstone. Both Messrs. Clarence Elliott and Ingwersen are plantmen, pure and simple, and their rock gardens are simply made to exhibit plants. Mr. Ingwersen had a number of good things including Meconopsis quintuplinervia, Daphne cneorum and some very quaint and distorted conifers. One cannot begin to enumerate the treasures that were exhibited in the garden of Clarence Elliott. Lewis Howell alongside silene Hookeri, Saxifraga tumbling waters was close by its parent Saxifraga longifolia and that rare native of the Pacific Northwest, Pentstemon rostralis was among the dozens of rare plants in his exhibit.

NEW INTRODUCTIONS

I have nearly filled up my allotted space and I had better stick to rock plants for to-day. There were several new and wonderful introductions to the rock gardening world, notably Anacyclus depressus, a new composite from the Atlas Mountains, with daisy-like flowers of the softest pink, stained with red on the outside, lying on a mat of deep green foliage; Campanula Allioni, variety Frank Barker, a rose pink form; Calceolaria Darwinii, a golden brown shell with a white bar across the lip; Crataegus oxyacantha, a plant of great character, being in fact a miniature hawthorn about eighteen inches high which develops all its energy to blooming throughout the year, and the new Alpine aster Mount Everest, which was collected by the expedition to that mountain a few years ago, and which, while it is of sentimental interest, differs little from the other alpine asters of Asia.

My correspondent gives me much information as to the greenhouse plants, trees and roses, but he says that the new dwarf polyantha rose, Sunshine, is quite the best he has seen in an orange-yellow shade. So much for the flower show of the year. I wish that you and I had both been there to see it.

Tablet Is Unveiled At Falaise, France

Falaise, Normandy, France, June 22.—A magnificent bronze tablet, with bas-reliefs depicting some of the principal scenes connected with the Norman conquest of England in 1066, was unveiled here Sunday on the wall of the old chateau of Falaise, home of William the Conqueror.

The tablet bears 815 names of participants in the Battle of Hastings, chosen after careful culling of old records. Of these about 100 are known to have descendants in Canada and the United States.

An important British delegation, headed by the mayor of Hastings and a number of noblemen of Norman ancestry, attended.

Four Men Sent to Nelson Prison and Three Men and Two Women to Oakalla

Nelson, B.C., June 22.—In police court in Grand Forks Saturday evening seven Doukhobor men and two women were sentenced to $100 fines or three months in prison for failing to give census information. Four of the men will serve time in the Nelson jail and three men and two women will go to the Oakalla prison farm. The sentences were passed following arrest of the offenders in the Doukhobor colonies at Grand Forks Saturday. There was little trouble in making the arrests of the Doukhobors.

A squad of provincial police officers is still in the vicinity of Grand Forks awaiting anything that may occur.

Lumber Producers To Discuss Costs And Coast Grades

Seattle, June 22.—A joint meeting of the Willamette Valley Lumbermen's Association and the West Coast Lumbermen's Association will be held in Eugene, Ore., on June 26, the West Coast Association announced Saturday. This meeting is the fourth of a series of monthly meetings the West Coast Association is holding in the various districts of the Douglas fir region during 1931.

It is planned to have grading, inspection, trade promotion and railroad freight rates the leading topics for discussion. The Grading Rules Committee of the West Coast Association, with the assistance of L. A. Nelson, head of the Department of Grades, will have charge of the grades subjects. The tentative programme is as follows:

1. Revision of and consolidation of structural grades and timber and dimension grades.
2. Factors contributing to the cost of West Coast Association lumber grades inspection.
3. Necessity of better grading at the mills; trend of grading.
4. The opportunities for lumber freight rate reductions into the Central States area; an explanation by J. D. Tennant, president of the West Coast Association, with charts as used at the meeting of the presidents of transcontinental railroads and representatives of the Western lumber industries at Chicago, February 16 and 17.
5. Collective selling of railway car material, by W. B. Greeley, secretary-manager of the West Coast Association.
6. Trade promotion of West Coast woods, by C. J. Hogue, in-charge trade extension and field service department of the West Coast Association.

Ontario Accidents Cause Death List

Toronto, June 22.—Twelve persons lost their lives in week-end accidents or as a result of heat in central southern Ontario. Four were drowned, four were killed in automobile accidents, two died of heat prostration, one man was killed by a train and another was burned to death. In addition, heavy highway traffic led to dozens of automobile accidents and a large list of injured.

Those who lost their lives were Albert Hill, Hamilton; John Montgomery, Toronto; Robert A. McCrae, ten, Toronto; Dennis Powell, six, Belleville; Ont. Jerry Tracy, Hamilton; Mrs. Audrey Brimacombe, Windsor, Ont.; Ralph Orton, Hespeler, Ont.; Becher Carr, Cornwall, Ont.; William E. Waring, seventy-two, Toronto; Henry Rose, eighty-five, Hallsburg, Ont.; Thomas Malcomson, Toronto, and Charles Ferguson, Lansing, Mich.

ONTARIO INDIANS MAKE COURT TEST

Brantford, Ont., June 22.—That the hereditary chiefs of the Six Nation Indians, whose authority was displaced some years ago by an elective body, are still waging warfare on the Government of Canada, was indicated Saturday when four Indians, charged with refusing to answer census questions, stated they had done so on the authority of the "council," this afterward being explained as the council of hereditary chiefs.

The four were arrested by R.C.M.P. constables. The Indians were apparently waiting for arrest and further action, accepting it to make a test case to further their "independence," which a faction of the Six Nations has been claiming for years, disavowing any Canadian government right as "allies of the British crown."

Rumors there would be an election this fall were denied by Hon. W. J. Major, Attorney-General, last week when he said it was not the intention of the government to issue a call until next year. Despite the denial, Liberal and Conservative Associations are busy throughout the rural constituencies organizing and several candidates already have been nominated.

FARM EXPORTS SHOW DECREASE

Ottawa, June 22.—How the export trade from farms of Canada to the United States has shriveled in the last decade is shown in a comparative table issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce. The table shows that in the eleven months ended May 31 last farm products to the value of only $21,696,930 went to the United States from Canada, whereas for the corresponding eleven months in 1921 the total was $171,492,962.

Among the few increases in the last eleven months as compared with 1921 was barley. Canada exported $230,382 this year and only $420 in the 1921 period. Another increase was in the export of bran, shorts and middlings from $1,506,310 in 1921 to $2,710,626 this year.

CONVENTIONS OF TWO PARTIES IN MANITOBA

Winnipeg, June 22.—Two political conventions will be held this week at which platforms will be formulated for the next general election in Manitoba. The Provincial Liberal Association will muster in Winnipeg on Friday and the Provincial Conservative Association will meet in Brandon Wednesday and Thursday.

Election of a new leader will be one of the outstanding matters for the Liberal convention in Winnipeg. J. W. Breakey of Souris, M.P.P. for Glenwood and House leader for the party, is mentioned for the leadership, resigned by H. W. Robson, K.C., and J. Thomson, K.C., former M.P.P. for South Centre, Winnipeg, may also be a candidate.

At Brandon, Lieut.-Col. F. G. Taylor, K.C., Conservative leader, on Wednesday will deliver the keynote address, and two members of the Dominion Government will speak, Hon. Maurice Dupre, K.C., Solicitor-General, and Hon. T. G. Murphy, Minister of the Interior.

Rumors there would be an election this fall were denied by Hon. W. J. Major, Attorney-General, last week when he said it was not the intention of the government to issue a call until next year. Despite the denial, Liberal and Conservative Associations are busy throughout the rural constituencies organizing and several candidates already have been nominated.

MR. HOOVER'S OFFER

NOT ONLY THE ACT OF A WISE creditor but the helpful word of a great democracy. This is how Mr. Owen D. Young, of reparations fame, describes President Hoover's proposal to suspend the collection of intergovernmental debts for one year. It is well put and most of the nations will interpret it that way.

Reduced to figures, Mr. Hoover's offer means that the United States government will forego the collection this year of something like $245,000,000, provided Great Britain and her European allies will agree not to collect the $425,000,000 which is due to them from Germany this year. Thus war debts and reparations become bound together.

News from Europe to-day indicates that Mr. Hoover's offer has been received with a great sense of gratitude, not so much for its financial importance as for the spirit of it, the beneficial effect it is bound to have upon international relationships. It marks the beginning of a movement of much greater significance than the bookkeeping aspects of it suggest.

At this writing, however, the attitude of France is somewhat obscure. La Liberté says: "Let's receive Hoover's propositions with prudence." It then adds: "Apparently once again it would be France which would pay the cost of the banquet of reconciliation." In the meantime, the offer is being studied at the Quai d'Orsay and it is expected the government's official reply will be drafted within the next twenty-four hours.

It will be noted that President Hoover coupled with his announcement a hope that by this expression of "desire to assist," the United States will have contributed to the success of the forthcoming disarmament conference. He again declared his belief that the burden of comprehensive armaments has contributed to bring about the economic recession from which the world is emerging. His offer, therefore, is a reminder to the nations of Europe that their troubles of the future may be very considerably curtailed if they will in fact live up to the pledge of the Briand-Kellogg pact. Abolishing war as an instrument of national policy means little or nothing as long as armaments remain at their present standards. Five billions of dollars a year is the amount being spent by the nations of the world on fighting equipment. Mr. Hoover by no means absolves his country from its share of "preparation" expenditure.

There is no suggestion that the United States, through the action proposed by the President, is about to revise her traditional policy as far as it applies to her dealings with foreign countries. It is not likely to be followed by her application for membership in the League of Nations. But it does imply that Mr. Hoover and his political friends and critics are now in agreement with the country's commercial leaders and economists, and recognize that the condition of Europe, though the Atlantic separates the Old World from the New, has an important influence upon the economic life of the United States.

Mr. Owen Young is close to the mark when he describes the President's offer as the act of a wise creditor. If it shall be accepted, Europe will be given a breathing space, and the benefit to the United States, moral as well as economic, will be far greater than may seem possible at this stage. It is true the holiday for debt and reparations payments is to be only a year; but it is quite likely that if the general effect which may reasonably be produced by the suspension will determine whether or not the whole question shall be considered anew in the light of that effect.

Whatever course may be adopted in future, however, there will be no wholesale debt cancellation by the United States while Continental Europe maintains its huge military and naval establishments. Meanwhile, the President's action is a broad hint as well as a helpful word. It ought to be turned into the beginning of a new understanding between the nations. It should at least help to turn the economic tide.

TAKING CARE OF THE PFENNIGS

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO THE Christian Science Monitor from Germany explains how thrift is being taught among the children of Berlin, and reports that more than 100,000 of them have their own savings account—not bank account. They are not the children of well-to-do parents. Saving, however, is made easy for them. In 450 schools, for example, the boys and girls are able to purchase a "savings stamp" for ten pfennigs. One hundred pfennigs equal twenty-five cents. This is pasted on a card and when three marks' worth—seventy-five cents—of stamps have been assembled, the card is taken to the Municipal Savings Bank and converted into cash, or if desired, an account is opened for the child, into which the money is paid.

Last year, we are told, 2,500,000 stamps were sold in this manner, totaling 250,000 marks. The city also gives every child a savings book if it would like to have one. The key is retained by the bank. Every two years the box is emptied and the money paid into the bank. Last year 50,000 boxes were emptied, yielding 1,500,000 marks. Even the babies of Berlin evidently are induced to save. That is to say, their parents are requested to do it for them. Each baby is presented by the city with a ticket worth three marks. The parents are asked to open an account for the child at the savings bank, which will accept the ticket, provided it is paid into the account within three years, and the parents add one mark on their own account. About 30,000 tickets are issued annually. In from forty to sixty per cent of the cases they are used.

Not only is this an excellent example of a community promoting thrift among its young people; it also reminds us of the resourcefulness and thoroughness of the German people.

"DOWN ON THE FARM"

DISCUSSION IN THE HOUSE OF COM-mons at Ottawa has brought out the fact that certain Toronto stockbrokers who are supposed to be "guests" of the country at Kingston penitentiary are not there at all, but are at the farm at Collins Bay, not far away, where juvenile prisoners are supposed to be set apart.

When questioned about the matter, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, explained that at this adjunct to the penitentiary a "preferred class" of prisoners are kept. Such division of convicted persons into "preferred" and "common" classes and treating them accordingly, says The Toronto Star, would seem right enough to the stockbrokers, but to the general public it bears the appearance of making a distinction between the rich and the poor, the well-dressed and the shabby—class distinction where there is supposed to be none.

The questions now are being asked: As the judges who pass sentence on prisoners do not designate offenders as belonging to the "preferred class" or to the "common class" by whom and how is the distinction made? And if it is not a social or financial distinction that is made, what is it?

It was pointed out in the discussion, incidentally, that the convicted brokers at Collins Bay do not escape their share of the work on the farm. They have had to take a hand at ditch-digging and other agricultural tasks. But the fact remains that they have been enjoying favors extended to them by somebody which the sentences pronounced in court obviously did not contemplate.

THE WOODSHED PASSES

IT IS RATHER ODD, WHEN YOU STOP to think about it, that no one has paid much attention so far to the passing of one of the greatest and most distinctive of all Canadian institutions—the woodshed.

A very few years ago the woodshed was a prime feature of all Canadian homes—except, of course, those of the wealthy. But to-day it is still on the road to extinction. The farmer, to be sure, still has his; but he will keep it long, with the spreading of gas mains, electric power lines and synthetic gas tanks to the rural regions? The woodshed, obviously, is doomed.

This, in a way, is too bad; for the woodshed had its points. It was not only a good place to keep and split wood. It was an indispensable, all-around handy room: a place where odds and ends of things could be stored, a place where the head of the house, if handy with tools, could make such gadgets as window screens and trellises for the rose bushes, a place where junior could park his bicycle and sister could keep her doll buggy. In other words, it was an exceedingly useful adjunct to the house.

The householder of to-day, who has no woodshed, feels the lack without knowing exactly what it is that he misses. He puts his lawn mower and his garden tools in the garage—and, every now and then, crushes them by driving carelessly in with his automobile. He does what carpentry work he has to do in his basement—and loses both his patience and his enthusiasm, to say nothing of his breath, running up and down the stairs.

Of course, he does not have to split wood, which is something; yet there are far worse jobs. Indeed, on a rainy afternoon, when the drops patter steadily on the roof of the woodshed, and the place is filled with that indescribable, pleasant odor of wood chips, earth and fresh air, and an open door emphasizes your feeling of snugness by enabling you to glance up from your dry retreat and see everything dripping outside—well, at such times splitting wood is almost fun.

But you do not really need wood to have a woodshed. Some day some astute real estate man is going to discover the usefulness of the woodshed—and he will make a big success by tacking one of these little extra rooms on every house he builds.

NATURE'S INDIFFERENCE
Walter Tipman in The Thinker

"A boy can take you into the open at night and show you the stars; he might tell you no end of things about them . . . but until he feels the vast indifference of the universe to his own fate, and has placed himself in the perspective of cold and illimitable space, he has not looked maturely on the heavens. . . . The discovery that our wishes have little or no authority in the world brings with it experience of the necessity that is the nature of things. The lesson of this experience is one from which we shrink and to which few ever wholly adapt themselves."

THE C.N.R. HOTEL
The Vancouver Province

Commenting on a statement made before a House of Commons committee recently by Sir Henry Thornton, to the effect that the two Canadian railways had laid out $61,680,000 in capital expenditure on hotels since 1923, The Calgary Herald says:

"An unfortunate example of foolish competition in construction may be seen in Halifax, where both companies maintain expensive hotels at a loss. The situation is soon to be duplicated in Vancouver, where the government system is completing a structure costing several millions to compete with the C.P.R. hotel, which is more than sufficient to look after all the high-priced tourist trade centring in that city."

We are sorry to take issue with our contemporary, but the fact is that Vancouver has become a desirable convention city, and in convention time can make good use of a second first-class hotel. That disposes of one part of the criticism. As for the other, the Canadian National had no choice in the matter of building a hotel here. It was under contract to do so. Twenty years ago, the city of Vancouver gave to the Canadian Northern a valuable site for yards and station, on the promise quite definitely recorded, that the company would do certain future work on the False Creek flats, would construct a tunnel from New Westminster to its Vancouver terminal—a scheme later dropped by agreement—and would build a hotel. When the Canadian National took over the Canadian Northern it assumed its liabilities as well as its assets, and among the liabilities was the contract to build the hotel. Being committed to the construction of a hotel, the railway management wisely decided there was no use building any except a first-class one.

The rest of Canada has nothing whatever to complain of in connection with the Canadian National Hotel at Vancouver. Vancouver paid the price of this convenience twenty years ago. It is only getting delivery now.

By H. B. W.

THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT has lately been handing down a series of decisions in important constitutional cases by the vote of five of its judges against four, a majority of one. It is quite apparent, therefore, that if the composition of the court had been changed by one man, the decisions might easily have gone the other way; and also that as the court will be changed from time to time, it may wish to take the opposite view later on. But being a good court, loyal to the old legal idea, why, of course, it would rather perpetuate an error than undermine its former reputation for infallibility. Again, if two of the judges had been absent, the four now in minority would have been a majority and justice would have been reversed. It is quite likely, I mean, that the four distinguished jurists who were outvoted (including in several cases the ablest members of the court) are right, and that the law as it finally stands is wrong.

THE SAME thing can and probably does happen in every other country, including our own. That is obvious enough and no cause for surprise; it doesn't matter whether it is, however, the majestic way in which the courts have persuaded the people that they are always right. Once the Imperial Privy Council has decided on one vote (and perhaps by a majority of one vote) more argument about it—men accept it as the word of justice incarnate, as a message from on high. They never pause to think that if one or two of the judges had been suffering from carpalitis and stayed home, justice incarnate would have said something else altogether. And very likely the court would have been wrong in both cases.

IN A BROAD historic sense, it doesn't matter what the court of last resort decides, so long as it can maintain its reputation for infallibility; it doesn't matter whether it is often wrong so long as the public accepts it as always right. We have got to have some definite law, some established arrangement of conduct among ourselves, and so long as we accept such an arrangement, it then it is relatively unimportant what the arrangement is. So I feel, on the whole, that the courts should never publish the split votes. As the race progresses, someone might begin to think too hard. Someone might begin to wonder what all you can hope to get in a world that is not just and fair, but a makeshift arrangement designed simply to keep the tribe from destroying itself, and known as the law.

DR. DAVID STARR JORDAN, who built the greatness of Stanford University, once said that "What a college is, is not worth depends entirely upon the man who has it. There is no use loading a $10,000 education on a fifty-cent boy." There is room for some cogitation here in British Columbia, where such things are worrying our governments at this time. Dr. Jordan's remark sums up rather pitifully the current of modern education. Modern education is trying to discover as soon as possible the ten-thousand-dollar and the fifty-cent boy, in order not to waste too much money on the latter at the expense of the former.

SUCH PROGRESS is being made in this movement that, although it has not gone far enough yet, probably like all movements, it will go too far soon enough. What is likely to happen is that many ten-thousand-dollar boys will be put into the fifty-cent class and robbed of an education that they deserve. Finding ten-thousand-dollar boys and fifty-cent boys at an early age is a difficult and rather dangerous job. A good case could probably be made out from history to prove that a large proportion, perhaps a majority, of the greatest men displayed no talent in their early studies, and under an efficient system of selection, such as we are busy devising now, would have been put in the fifty-cent class and turned into boiler-makers.

WHAT SYSTEMATIC education tends to overlook, and what governments overlook, is that education has more than one purpose. Its purpose not only is to raise the general knowledge of the race, but to produce occasionally a man who is capable of giving the race real leadership. The latter purpose is usually neglected. Governments never realize that it is worth while to educate a million fifty-cent boys in order to produce one Shakespeare or one Gladstone; and no Shakespeare or Gladstone is going to be recognizable until he has most of his education. Before that time he most likely will not seem worth much trouble or expense. Thus mass education is a lucky tub out of which, once in a long time, we pull out somebody worth while who, with a few others of the same type, carries civilization on his back while the rest of the world gropes behind. And on the other hand, we have no means of turning out such a man, effectively, without the raw material by the wrong treatment. In the case of Shakespeare, for instance, higher education probably would have robbed the race of its best literature. So either way you look at it, whether you favor general education or restricted education, the chances are against you, and there doesn't seem to be anything to do about it.

NOT LONG ago the little girl from next door confided to George Padbury that a little baby was coming to her house. Santa Claus, she said, was bringing it. "An' it's goin' to be a little twenty-two year one," said she. "But mustn't tell nobody, 'cause it's goin' to be such a 'prise' to mummy and daddy!" Mr. Padbury, of course, kept this confidence in the way that such confidences are intended to be kept, and the whole neighborhood knew of it before nightfall. So there was no general surprise, therefore, when the little girl came racing through the oak trees the other day screaming at the top of her capacious lungs. "It's comin'! It's comin'!" Everybody knew immediately what she meant. The only person who seemed surprised was the little girl herself, and she was quite bewildered. For instead of the little green baby which she had ordered from Santa Claus, she reported that her brother was "all pinkish," which seemed to be a great disappointment to her. But it was amazing still, the poor little pinkish baby who has arrived next door "hasn't got any shoes, hasn't got any dollies, got no teddy bear, comin' without any hat on him at all." But all this is to be set right when he arrives home, for the fact that little pinkish baby is sure to get a new hat and a new one of her dollies—probably the one which has lost its head—and she would take him to the beach next Saturday and teach him to paddle in the sea. And then, as a final tribute of affection, "I'm going to put that little pinkish baby in my own bed every night and give him a great big kiss onto his face." So we are evidently in for stirring times next door.

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES
JUNE 22, 1906

From The Times Files

Weather forecast—Victoria and vicinity—Moderate winds, fine and warm to-day and Saturday.

Considerably under $5,000 was struck off the city assessment roll by the court of revision yesterday. This is the smallest amount ever deducted.

The Times was informed to-day by one interested in the trapping industry of the Straits, that spring salmon have been running this week extraordinarily well. This report is being borne out by the fact that Finlay, Durham and Brodie of this city have taken about thirty tons of these splendid fish from their trap at Otter Point this week.

The second of the intercity lacrosse matches will be played between the Victoria and New Westminster teams to-morrow afternoon at the Oak Bay park.

The bathing pavilion of W. Smith at the Gorge will be opened to the public on Saturday. There are over 100 apartments in the building and every accommodation is provided.

Halibut fishing along the banks fringing the coast of Vancouver Island is at its best at this season of the year. Canadians engaged in the industry are reported to be making exceptionally large catches, and from information received, getting a fairly good price.

DEBATE PROPOSED

To the Editor:—Having read the several letters by Guy T. Sheppard, and the apparent earnest desire to prevent the spread of Communism in this country and usher in a better state of society for all, I believe that the most effective way to help along this cause would be to debate the issue in public. In that way a great many of us, who at present are floundering in the dark, might be enlightened. So with that end in view I interviewed Mr. Sheppard, who has kindly agreed to bring the proposal before his committee, which meets on Monday night.

He assures me that many of his associates are able men and believes with me that a debate would be a boost for the general good.

I have also approached the Communists of Victoria and am assured that they will furnish a debating team of any required strength, at any time and in any place.

If Mr. Sheppard's supporters approve of the proposal we will announce it in press so that all interested may be pleased.

INCORRECT

To the Editor:—According to The Vancouver Star, the Hon. S. I. Howe, Provincial Secretary, has made a statement that the "strikers at Sooke Lake would be the most likely to be led by men who are not British."

We do not mind the true facts of the position being put in the press, but we do mind the object of untruths being circulated by those who are in a position to know the real facts.

The membership of the Workers' Alliance and all the members of the strike committee are either Canadian or British born, and at no time during or before the strike have any foreign agitators been operating.

The membership of the Workers' Alliance has been a very small percentage of foreign born, and it so (Continued on Page 17)

"Canada's Century," Says Welsh Editor

David Davies, Retired Swansea Publisher, Predicts This Country About to Burst Upon World as Greatest Mineral Producer Ever Known; Maintains That Great Britain is "Over the Worst" of World-wide Depression and is Still Leader in Industrial Enterprise; Unemployment Aggravated by Stoppage of Emigration

"This will be Canada's century."

"It is my unswerving opinion that Canada is about to burst upon the world as the greatest mineral producing country known so far. The principal development here in the future will be in mineral production, in which direction this country has already yielded on a phenomenal scale. I have no hesitation in predicting that Canada's mineral development with in a comparatively few years will exceed in value all its surface products. The wheat crop grown by Canada will be as nothing in comparison with the gigantic nature of its mineral resources, which are as yet unscratched."

So spoke David Davies, Welsh newspaper editor of fifty years' standing, and until recently publisher of The South Wales Daily Post and the related publications, The Cambrian and South Wales Weekly Post, who, after previously disposing of his interest in the Northcliffe Press, embarked upon a Canada-Orient tour, which took him through Victoria Saturday afternoon as a traveler aboard the outbound Empress of Japan.

Mr. Davies was mayor of Swansea in 1917 and the following year, has held various public offices, and has represented the Swansea division in the British House of Commons after the next general election in Great Britain.

TO ENTER POLITICS

Prior to his departure from this city on Saturday for the Orient, Mr. Davies said he had consented to be the Conservative candidate in Swansea, and he expressed the opinion that his party would be returned to power. When the Imperial Press Conference was held in Great Britain last year, Mr. Davies assisted in entertaining the overseas delegates and met a number of Canadian editors. He has visited Canada on several occasions and has made a close study of the country and its potentialities.

PIVOTAL DOMINION

On the occasion of the Empire Press Union conference in 1926, Mr. Davies, in addressing a public dinner meeting in Victoria, made the prediction that if the Empire held together, Canada would, within fifty years, be the pivotal centre of the British Empire. "The predictions I made eleven years ago in this city concerning Canada's ultimate pivotal position," declared Mr. Davies on Saturday, "have been substantiated by Premier Bennett in a recent article published by The Saturday Evening Post."

"This country is destined to become the core and kernel of the British Empire," said Mr. Davies in addressing a Canadian Club meeting in Victoria on August 26, 1920. "Canada, in her own interests, stands to gain more by holding the British Empire together than any other part. I believe one of the certainties of the future is a new form of government, a new form of federation and from that federation may come, certainly will come, a complete reunion of the English-speaking people of the world. "In years to come Canada will necessarily become the seat and centre of that English-speaking federation."

"It will be a future full of greatness. And you are now engaged unconsciously for that greatness."

TURN IS VISIBLE

Turning to conditions in Great Britain, Mr. Davies sounded a decidedly optimistic note.

"We were the first to feel the slump and we shall be the first to get out of it—I think the turn is already visible," he said. "At no period has unemployment been as bad as it had appeared to be. There are more people in employment in Britain to-day than there were before the war."

"But are there not 3,000,000 unemployed over there?" he was asked. "Yes, but you must consider that emigration of fully 800,000 a year has been stopped. For four and a half years there was absolutely no emigration from Britain and that has been greatly cut down since. This has more than neutralized the loss of 1,000,000 men in the war. In the period of inflated prosperity, which followed the European debacle, no one wanted to emigrate."

"Then the national strike in 1926 gave a setback to Britain," he said, "but was just beginning to get back on her feet. In considering our unemployment problem you have to take stock of the fact that we have a large proportion of unemployables."

"Exactly what do you mean by unemployables?" "Broadly speaking, they are men who do not want to work, and never will if they can avoid it. There is a large percentage who have loafed around and I believe the dose is responsible in large measure for this state of affairs."

WOMEN OUT OF WORK

"Then again," Mr. Davies continued, "unemployment in Britain had been increased to a remarkable degree by women, who before the war were either at home, or were married and supported by their husbands. Many of these women had served in most useful capacities in a time of stress, but when the war was over they were unsettled and sought occupation in various walks of commercial life."

"Those women who could not find work were added to the ranks of the jobless and have been included in all estimates of unemployed," he said.

"In my own city of Swansea there are 40,000 people who have been known to work only a couple of days a week and then go on the dole. They are classed among the partly unemployed."

"Conditions such as these," said Mr. Davies, "will inevitably continue as long as there is a Labor government

WHITE SEES END OF WAR DEBTS

Toronto, June 22. — "In my opinion, this announcement of President Hoover marks the beginning of the end of international war debt obligations. They constitute a drag which international trade cannot continue to withstand," said Sir Thomas White, leading Canadian banker and war-time Minister of Finance, in a statement to the Canadian Press, on the war debts moratorium proposal.

Declaring the problems of war debts and reparations, maldistribution of gold and reduction of armaments, were all closely associated, Sir Thomas claimed reduction of armaments would create a spirit in Europe much more favorable to concessions to Germany than existed at the present time.

In his statement, Sir Thomas expressed a belief in the possibility of an international conference being held within two months to consider the whole question of war debts and reparations.

NEW PLAYGROUND ON SUNNY ISLAND OPENED BY C.P.R.

Capt. C. D. Neurosis Officiates at Inauguration of Activities at Newcastle

Victoria Sends First Party to Gulf Resort; Many Coming From Vancouver

By Special Representative of The Times
Newcastle Island, June 22.—Another distinctive British Columbia outing resort has come into being here, developed by the management genius and money investment of C.P.R. steamships.

Sunny Newcastle Island had its official opening Saturday afternoon, with ceremonies aboard the St. Princess Elaine, and in the great dance and refreshment pavilion which the company has just completed, among the fire and a few hundred yards from the shore, and looking across the Gulf of Georgia to the snow-capped mountains around Vancouver on the one side, and on the other the harbor to Nanaimo, its coal docks and mine heads, and the hinterland rolling to the west.

Capt. C. Neurosis of Victoria, manager of the B.C. Coast Service of the C.P.R., personally presided over the ceremonies of the day, and received on behalf of the company the congratulations of the Victoria, Nanaimo and Vancouver public men and transportation officials who gathered for the event.

FIRST PARTY FROM VICTORIA
Newcastle Island, first excursion party, consisting of 400, under the auspices of the C.P.R. Social Club of Victoria, arrived on St. Princess Victoria from the capital, just before Dr. G. A. B. Hall, mayor of Nanaimo, speaking in the pavilion, declared the activities of the resort officially inaugurated, and the dance band struck up popular waltzes and fox trots, which brought the sports-clad folks out on to the floor.

On Sunday the resort was thronged, following the arrival of the boats with the first party from Vancouver. This consisted of nearly 1,000 persons on a day's excursion under The Vancouver Daily Province.

From now on during the summer season, excursions to the island will come one after the other, brought by a fleet of three large C.P.R. vessels, the Princess Victoria, Princess Elaine and Princess Joan, or Princess Elizabeth. Next week and 2,000 have booked for the trip under the Civic Federation of Vancouver. On July 1 from Vancouver the Odd Fellows to the number of 1,800 will come.

PLAYGROUND FOR VANCOUVER

"We hope Newcastle Island will be the future playground of Vancouver city," said Capt. Neurosis in opening the ceremonies. "The C.P.R. in this has followed its usual advanced policy in catering to the public in amusements as well as in transportation. People leaving Vancouver in the rain will be able to come here and enjoy the sunshine and warm breezes. The C.P.R. has developed this island consistently by transportation, by hotels and now in an amusement way."

Capt. Neurosis declared that C.P.R. expenditures on Vancouver Island last year for wages and supplies, and leaving out of consideration capital expenditure, amounted to $3,000,000.

"So your interests are our interests," he went on. "If you think we are worth while will you boost for us? We need it now more than ever. If we were not serving or treating you well, we would not ask for it. We are serving you to the best of our ability."

TOURISTS BRING MILLIONS
J. G. McPherson, vice-president of the Vancouver Publicity Bureau, declared that after what the C.P.R. had done for Canada, Vancouver and Vancouver Island, it made it easy for any citizen to get on his feet and say something on the great company's behalf.

"We realize that Newcastle Island possibly means a new era to Vancouver than to Victoria," he went on. "The Vancouver Publicity Bureau looks on Newcastle Island as another advantageous resort to advertise."

Pointing to the commercial value to Canada of the tourist trade, Mr. McPherson said this trade had grown from an expenditure of $83,734,000 in 1920 to $200,000,000 in 1930. An analysis of individual expenditure showed that tourists entering Canada on tour permits spent here an average of $121 per person.

"The tourist business is one of the largest businesses in Canada to-day," he went on. "So many of our large industries have slipped that we must necessarily draw very heavily on and attract the tourist. In this way, the C.P.R. is a very valuable asset to us."

"We know Newcastle Island is going to be of great benefit to the citizens of Vancouver as a health resort, and we hope the C.P.R. earns dividends on it."

ANOTHER INSTANCE OF C.P.R. VISION

"When we take our minds back to 1883, when the last spike was driven on the C.P.R., we realize what the C.P.R. has done for Canada," said Mayor Herbert Alvarez of Victoria.

"Newcastle Island is just another example of that far-sighted vision of the officials responsible for the great Canadian railway system which spans the globe. The city of Victoria is proud of this organization."

NANAIMO EXPRESSES APPRECIATION
Mayor Hall of Nanaimo congratulated the C.P.R. on its wisdom in selecting Newcastle Island for its new outing resort.

"I also want to express the appreciation of the citizens of Nanaimo for the accommodation and splendid boat services the C.P.R. is now giving the people of Nanaimo," the mayor continued.

"We feel Newcastle Island will be of great benefit financially, healthfully and morally to the people. We hope Newcastle Island will be to B.C. what Coney Island is to New York."

PROMINENT MEN TAKE PART
Among the others who took part in the function were: George I. Warren, secretary of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce; James H. Beatty, M.P.P.; Harold Husband, manager of Vancouver Island Transportation Lines, all of Victoria.

Among those with the mayor from Nanaimo were: Rev. F. W. Anderson, president of the Kiwanis Club; J. E. Edge Partington, president of the Rotary Club; P. Maffeo, president of the Gyro Club; P. Seattle Bandit Wounds Constable

Seattle, June 22.—Pat Whalen, headquarters patrolman, was shot twice and seriously wounded by a lone masked bandit who attempted to hold up an office of The Seattle Times circulation department early yesterday. The bandit escaped without getting any money.

With wounds in his groin and leg, Whalen is expected to recover. The electric locomotive first came into use about 1885.

many entered the newsboys' room, in which James Wilbarger and E. Wright, employees, were working, about 2 a.m. Whalen was in the rear section of the room.

Wilbarger and Wright ducked behind a counter on the man's order to "stick 'em up." He fired once at them, hitting the wall near Wilbarger, and shot twice at Whalen as he appeared, drawing his own pistol from his holster.

The electric locomotive first came into use about 1885.

What Would Happen If You Lost Your Glasses During Your Holidays?

A person who wears glasses should never go away from home without an extra pair. Glasses are easily lost on camping and hiking trips. Their loss may mean serious inconvenience or even worse. Don't take chances this year. Enjoy the satisfaction of knowing you have an extra pair in your grip or knapsack. Your extra pair should have the new tinted lenses, of course. They protect the eyes from the glare of the sun.

WEDDING HELD AT ST. MARK'S

Miss Beatrice M. Rogers Bride
Saturday of Wm. H. Griffin

St. Mark's Church, Boleskine Road, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock, when Beatrice Mary, youngest daughter of Mr. George Rogers, "Chester Lea," North Quadra Street, and of the late Mrs. Rogers, and William H. Griffin, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Griffin, "Hillcrest," Glenford Avenue, were united in marriage. Rev. O. L. Jull performed the ceremony and the hymn sung was "O Perfect Love." The church had been beautifully decorated in summer blooms in pink and white by friends of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in the wedding gown of white satin, cut on slim princess lines. Her veil of hand-embroidered lace and net was arranged in cap and shawl, with the orange blossoms worn by her mother at her wedding. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses, white carnations and Madonna lilies.

Miss Eva Griffin, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, in a becoming frock of green silk nixon, figured in pastel-shaded sweet peas, fashioned in long lines, and a green mohair hat. She carried a bouquet of pink and mauve sweet peas. Little Beatrice Griffin, sister of the groom, was the flower girl, in a dainty sleeveless frock of pink crepe de Chine, trimmed with satin ribbon, and wearing a wreath of rosebuds in her hair. She carried a basket of pink larkspur and roses.

Mr. Victor Rogers, cousin of the bride, supported the groom. The ushers were Mr. Stanley Rogers and Mr. George Griffin. During the ceremony the register Mrs. L. Rogers sang in a charming manner "Until," accompanied by Mrs. O. L. Jull, who also played the wedding music.

RECEPTION HELD

Following the ceremony a largely-attended reception was held at the home of the bride's father, "Chester Lea," where the bride and groom, standing under an arch of fragrant blossoms, from which was suspended a wedding bell, received the guests. They were assisted by Mr. Rogers and Mrs. J. Rogers, aunt of the bride, in a smart gown of black, figured nixon and black picture hat, and Mrs. Griffin, mother of the groom, becomingly attired in a gown of French blue flat crepe and black hat. The beautifully decorated three-tier wedding cake centred the supper table, artistically arranged with sweet peas and roses.

The happy couple left on the midnight boat for Vancouver and Seattle, where the honeymoon will be spent. For travelling the bride wore a frock of French blue Canton crepe, with hat to match, a tawn wrap and fox fur, the gift of the groom.

The bride's gift to the groom was a gold watch and chain, with the groom's gift to the bride, a gold bracelet; to the best man, a fountain pen and pencil; and to the ushers, soft cuff links.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Griffin will make their home at "Chester Lea." Among the many beautiful gifts received was a handsome standard lamp from Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Batchelor of the Batchelor Chain Stores, where the groom is employed.

YOUR BABY and MINE

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

DON'T FORCE CHILD TO EAT IN HOT WEATHER

With summer in full swing one hesitates cautiously before suggesting diet lists. In winter the variety of foods is very large for the child from one to two and beyond. In summer one takes the temperature into consideration and excludes meat, hot cereals, and heating foods on those days when the higher and more cooling vegetables and fruits and milk would constitute a more appetizing menu.

In this season we take extra precautions on very hot days to keep the menu below, rather than up to its usual limits—and thus prevent those digestive disturbances which are the winter's menu might encourage. We don't eat turkey and plum pudding on hot days, neither do we run through the entire gamut of the baby's menu. We temper appetite to temperature.

DIET LIST, BY REQUEST

A reader asks: "Would you kindly print a diet list for the child of eighteen months of age? Should meat be included in it? My baby now eats cereal and milk for breakfast, with orange juice, and vegetables, fruit and milk for lunch, cereal or vegetables and milk for supper. Will you criticize this?"

With the above warnings in mind I can suggest that ordinarily the diet of the eighteen months old child is about as follows:

POPULAR YOUNG COUPLE MARRY

Miss Ivy Clapham Becomes
Bride of Donald E. Smith

Pastel shades of yellow and blue formed the color scheme of the pretty wedding solemnized at the Emmanuel Baptist Church on Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock, when Rev. E. B. Bishop officiated. Miss Ivy Clapham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Clapham of "Woodley Ghyll," Metcophin, and Mr. Donald E. Smith, of Vancouver, brother of the groom, united in marriage Miss Ivy Clapham.

The happy couple left on the midnight boat for Vancouver and Seattle, where the honeymoon will be spent. For travelling the bride wore a frock of French blue Canton crepe, with hat to match, a tawn wrap and fox fur, the gift of the groom.

The bride's gift to the groom was a gold watch and chain, with the groom's gift to the bride, a gold bracelet; to the best man, a fountain pen and pencil; and to the ushers, soft cuff links.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Griffin will make their home at "Chester Lea." Among the many beautiful gifts received was a handsome standard lamp from Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Batchelor of the Batchelor Chain Stores, where the groom is employed.

Lodge to Meet—Court Maple Leaf No. 9202, A.O.F., will meet in the "Bachelors' Hall" tonight at 8 o'clock. Nomination, election and initiation will be the feature of the evening, after which a social evening will follow. Ladies are asked to bring cake.

MISSION BANDS HELD RALLY

Presbyterian Children Join in Annual Gathering at St.
Andrew's

The Presbyterian Mission Bands held their annual rally in St. Andrew's Church on Saturday afternoon with representation from the following bands: Joseph McCoy's, from Knox Church; Marian MacRae's, from St. Paul's; Willing Helpers, from the Chinese church; Erskine band, from Erskine Church; and the Goforths, from St. Andrew's. All have done good and faithful work during the year under efficient leadership, and the work of their hands and the offerings of pennies and dimes count very materially in the missionary interests to which they are pledged.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. La Pointe, president of the Presbyterian W.M.S. The familiar "Dare to be a Daniel" was sung, followed by prayer by Rev. G. F. Cox of St. Paul's, and Scripture reading by Mrs. Cox. Rev. H. P. S. Luttrell showed lantern slides of life and scenes in China, and after many years spent in that land as a missionary he made it real and thrilling to his hearers, both young and old.

An honored guest, Mrs. Dill of Toronto, a member of the General Council of the W.M.S. and Mission Band secretary, was made very welcome. Her short address was impressive: a story of two boys in widely different circumstances who became friends and partners with God and were factors of great good in the work of missions was the basis of an appeal for the growth of Mission bands. Already there are 500 bands with a membership of about 12,000. The closing words were Tiny Tim's "God Bless Us, Every One."

In response to the roll call each band repeated a motto or other selection. The Chinese band and St. Paul's sang some pretty verses. Miss Jean MacQueen and Miss Margaret Dickson were accompanists. Several hymns were sung during the session and Mr. Luttrell made the closing prayer.

THE SPORTS MIRROR

Percy Williams May Have Seen His Best Running Days

Lack of Competition Big Handicap to Canada's Famous Sprinter

Schmeling - Stribling Fight Can Make or Break Fight Game

Winner by a Knockout Would Create Swift Revival in Sport

IT BEGINS to look as if the writing on the wall says Percy Williams, Canada's famous sprinter and double winner in the dash events at the 1928 Olympic Games at Amsterdam, is not quite in the class of the boys south of the line. Friday night at Los Angeles, Williams, running in a special century dash, could do no better than finish fourth, Wyckoff, who equalled the world record of 9.5 seconds to capture the event, had twice before taken the dust from Percy's flying heels, at Amsterdam and at Vancouver in 1929. The other two runners to finish ahead of Williams, Emmett Toppino, New Orleans, and Cy Landis, San Francisco, have both come to the front in recent months but were not expected to prove serious threats to either Wyckoff or Williams.

For the last year and a half, Williams has not shown the same form that carried him to his great victories at Amsterdam, which thrilled the athletic world. It is true that last year he flashed some of his old-time form to win the 100-yard dash at the British Empire Games at Hamilton, but he suffered another injury to the same leg that has been bothering him for the last two years. He is now expected to be back in the line-up for the 100-yard dash at the University of Washington, who was only running to provide competition.

Lack of competition has been one of Percy's big handicaps. There is nobody to run against him in Vancouver, that is to say, nobody that can provide him with any kind of close competition. On the other hand, the American sprinters are taking part in a number of meets and some of them are just about an equal that competition is of the keenest nature. It takes keen competition to bring out the best in a race of athletes.

Even if he is through, Williams will long be remembered as the slim youngster who provided the sensation of the 1928 Olympics by carrying off the honors in both the 100 and 220 metre events. We hope that Percy has not reached the end of his career and that he will be able to again carry Canada's colors at the 1932 Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

What will the fight July 3 at Cleveland between Max Schmeling and Young Stribling do for the once proud martial art of boxing? Will it be a bout that will revive the interest in the ring? Or, will it put a black eye on a racket that has become more and more disgusting in the last few years?

A glimmering of hope for boxing fans may be seen in the replies to a poll. At this time more than 313 replies have been received with Stribling running four to one choice to win. Warm interest in the championship affair has been reported from 169 cities. Sixty-five cities are reported mildly interested. In several cities, according to sports editors, there is no interest whatever in the bout.

Many sports editors who were invited to comment expressed themselves as being fed up with boxing in its present state throughout the country. The indifference to the program at Cleveland was manifested particularly in the eastern part of the United States.

The south, where a few exceptions are worked up over the battle, due to the fact that its favorite son, Stribling, is to get another chance to make good. Stribling was almost the unanimous choice below the Mason-Dixon line, most of the observers taking the view that the Georgia boy will knock Schmeling colder than a herring.

Many of the cities in the north, according to writers, are more interested in wrestling right now than in boxing. In view of the fact that a world championship fight is in the offing, this sentiment is unusual. Can you imagine, in the days of Jack Dempsey, a whole group of cities going in for wrestling?

The status of boxing will be influenced greatly by the fight at Cleveland. If it is a great fight, a swift revival in the fight industry can be expected. If it is a baited, the many art may just as well fold up for a long sleep.

Defeats Christian By Single Stroke In Fine Play-off

Young Assistant Pro at Portland Club Captures His First Championship by Close Victory Over Fellow Townsman in 18-hole Match at Tacoma Golf Club; Zimmerman Shoots a 73, One Over Par; Pair Were Tied With 296 Each at End of 72 Holes; Victoria Players Fail to Get Into Money

Tacoma, June 22.—Cool as the rain that pelted them during part of their match, Eldred Zimmerman, twenty-three-year-old assistant professional of the Multnomah Golf Club, Portland, stroked his way over the Tacoma Country and Golf Club course in 73, one over par, to conquer Neil Christian, Portland professional, by one stroke to win the Pacific northwest open championship in a play-off match yesterday.

The two Oregon stars were tied with 296 each at the head of the field Saturday at the end of seventy-two holes and they met yesterday over the eighteen-hole course to decide the championship, relinquished by Bert Wilde, Belingham pro, and $400 first money and $250 second prize.

Zimmerman collected an eagle-three at the fifth hole and birdie four at the ninth and sixteenth to barely nose out the 1929 open champion. The Multnomah assistant also had two aces on his card while Christian had none but the brilliant eagle squared them up with par for him.

Their cards were as follows:

Par... 4545334445-37
Zimmerman... 64533444-38
Christian... 55453344-40

Semi-finals in the first annual club championship of the Gorge Vale Golf Club were reached yesterday after a number of close matches. Jimmy Todd, winner of the medal honors, and favorite to be the club's first champion, came through with a fine victory over F. Thomas by the narrow margin of 1 up.

SCHMELING AND STRIBLING BOTH READY

Opponents in Championship Heavyweight Battle July 3 Show Good Form

Large Crowds Watch Fighters Go Through Paces; Bob Edgren Says Max Improved

Geauga Lake, Ohio, June 22.—The title shot is still almost two weeks away, but Young Bill Stribling is ready now for his fifteen-round duel with Max Schmeling in the new municipal stadium in Cleveland, July 3.

Restlessness and a touch of irritability are always the first signs in the approaching edge of physical perfection in an athlete, and yesterday the rugged, heavy-weight challenger from Macon, Ga., paced his training camp looking for something to do. His workouts are held at night to escape the heat of the day and to reproduce as closely as possible conditions as they will be in the stadium the night of the title fight.

Stribling, never far from top-notch condition, is a picture of perfect training, finely-tuned athlete as he is being constantly with the crowds that flocked over the week-end to the camp on Geauga Lake, twenty-seven miles out of Cleveland. They have taken his airplanes away for the time being. A brand new motorcycle, his latest speed craze, is locked up in a garage, and the only diversion he has is driving an automobile about the park. Even his training workouts have been restricted to keep him from going stale, and time hangs heavily on the restless southerner's hands.

CUTS WEIGHT DOWN

So close is Stribling right now to fighting edge that his weight at 180 pounds, is only two or three pounds more than he expects to scale July 3. He has set 186 pounds as his minimum weight, four more than he ever carried before for a major battle. In Miami two years ago Stribling weighed 182 pounds for his match with Jack Sharkey.

Connaut Lake Park, Pa., June 22.—Already pared down to his fighting weight of 180 pounds, Max Schmeling, who is training at the good time of his life, is in preparation for his world heavyweight championship fight with Young Stribling in Cleveland, July 3.

Today the athlete rested in preparation for his trial week of boxing, starting Tuesday.

Schmeling wound out for nine rounds before 3,100 sweltering spectators, who stood beneath a broiling sun in his outdoor arena.

Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, rubbed his hands with glee as the customers passed through the turnstiles, for each deposited $1 in cash for the privilege of watching the bronzed contender to throw his punches.

Bob Edgren, chairman of the California Boxing Commission, and noted fight authority, was among the boxers to watch every move that Schmeling made. Edgren said:

"Schmeling made Edgren, said: 'The first fight of the semi-finals have also been reached while the finals have been gained in all the other fights.'

Yesterday's results and the draw and starting times for next Sunday follow:

Dr. D. M. Baillie won from M. S. Lawson, 2 and 1.
R. Foulis defeated his son, R. A. Foulis, 1 up; Capt. C. I. MacKenzie accounted for D. Fyvie, 5 and 4, and Dr. D. M. Baillie defeated M. S. Lawson, 2 and 1 in the other three matches.

First Flight
Lieut.-Col. A. F. M. Slater won from G. Florence, by default.
R. Angus won from W. H. Thornborrow, 5 and 1.
J. S. Gow won from Vincent Martin, 7 and 6.

Second Flight

R. Feden won from H. H. Allen, 3 and 1.

ELKS AND SONS MEET TO-NIGHT IN SENIOR BALL

Elks, leaders of the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League, and Sons of Canada, holders of second place, will meet at the Royal Athletic Park this evening at 6.15 o'clock. These two clubs are pretty evenly matched and have put on some great battles this season. The Elks hold the whip hand to date but the Sons are looking forward to nothing up a win to-night. Lloyd Cann will do the cheering for the Sons, with Jack Noble making his initial appearance on the mound for the antlered tribe.

Schmeling was hitting faster than the Teuton did before his match with Jack Sharkey last summer and that he punched effectively, short and straight, with his right hand, Schmeling boxed six rounds, pounded the heavy bag for one round and went through two of calisthenics, making nine in all.

LEW RUSH IS BIKE WINNER

Victoria Rider Captures Twenty-five-mile Race on Mainland in Fast Time

Vancouver, June 22.—Completing the course eighteen seconds faster than Frank Elliott, defending champion, Lew Rush, Victoria, yesterday captured the Pacific Coast twenty-five-mile championship trial of the Vancouver Bicycle Club on Pacific Highway.

Rush finished in 1 hour 2 minutes 30 seconds, Elliott taking 1 hour 2 minutes 48 seconds. Victoria also took third-place honors, Godfrey Parrott coming home in 1 hour 4 minutes 35 seconds. Fourth went to Leo Marchiori of Vancouver and fifth to Jim Davies, Rush won the Province Cup race around Stanley Park this year.

The first handicap award went to the veteran George Pratt, who clipped seven minutes off his time made last year to finish in 1 hour 13 minutes. Walter Creswell was second handicap winner and Jack Nicholson third.

TAYLOR IS SEVENTH

Tom Shankie in his sixteenth year rode the distance in the good time of 1 hour 17 minutes 6 seconds. Jim Taylor, another favored Victoria rider, could get no better than seventh-place. Jack Stulmker of Seattle, yet handicapped by a misplaced rear wheel which scraped the forks practically the whole distance.

Two riders started, only one failing to finish. W. Booth was forced out by tire trouble. The start and finish took place at Whalley's corner on the highway, the cyclists going twelve and a half miles out to the big hill near the border and returning.

Ryder Cup Teams Sweeter In Heat

British Golfers Extremely Worried By Scorching Weather at Columbus

Captain Whitcombe and Teammates Battle For Places

Columbus, Ohio, June 22.—Old Sol with his blistering heat waves worried King George's expeditionary forces last night yesterday when Captain Walter Hagen's wrecking crew as they prepared for their Ryder Cup matches with the Americans over the Soloto course.

Direct from the British Isles, the golfing Britons ran into the most scorching heat spell of the year.

The mercury flirted with the century mark and promised to be just as relentless when the international team matches open fire Friday and Saturday. Even the thirteen Americans, who fight it out for the four remaining berths on Sir Walter's team to-day and Tuesday, wilted during their drills yesterday.

"We don't mind the wind, a hard match or any collection of traps," sighed Charles Whitcombe, captain of the British team, which arrived Saturday night, "but this hot weather takes something out of us. We are not accustomed to it. Some more iced tea please."

ARE SPECTATORS

Capt. Whitcombe and his mates will occupy a gallery seat to-day and Tuesday at the American team's struggle for berths on the team.

The rivals for extra places are William Burke, New York; Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn; Henry Guet, Bridgeport, Conn.; Ed. Dudley, Wilmington, Del.; Olin Dutra, Los Angeles; Johnny Golden, New York; Charles Higgendorf, Detroit; Willie Klein, New York; Denmore Shute, Cleveland; Joe Turnesa, New York; Frank Walsh, Chicago; Al Watrous, Detroit, and Craig Wood, Buffalo.

They will play eighteen-hole rounds in the morning and afternoon of the two days, and the four low scorers will join the American team of Capt. Hagen, Horton Smith, Al Espinoza, Johnny Farrell, Leo Diegel, and Gene Sarazen, who were invited to compete without tests.

ENGLISHMEN WIN EASILY AT NANAIMO

Touring Footballers Defeat Up-island Team 8 to 2; Led 3 to 0 at Interval

Nanaimo, June 22.—The touring English soccer football eleven scored the tenth straight victory of their Canadian tour Saturday by defeating Nanaimo, 8 to 2. Twenty-five hundred fans watched a fine exhibition. The game had been in progress twenty-five minutes, with the local boys holding the Englishmen down fairly well, when Barry took a cross from Urwin for the first goal, five minutes later Cookson, at centre, scored from close in to make it 2 to 0. The tourists took control from then on and had several tries at goal, both Smith and Cookson hitting the upright with what looked like sure counters. Two minutes from half time Smith scored, putting the visiting team three up.

GOALS CAME FAST

In the second half goals were scored by the Englishmen with great regularity, and in a short time they had made it 7-1 in their favor. Archibald, having headed one through on a nice cross from corner by Waugh.

With five minutes to go Urwin scored the best goal of the day when he came in from outside and took the ball to the centre, beating Edmunds and Boyd and giving Atkin no chance with a bullet-like shot. The local boys made a wild and were awarded a penalty which G. G. G. converted, the whistle blowing a few seconds later with the final score 8-2.

The work of the Englishmen was delightful to watch. All through the ninety minutes, and to all appearances they never let up, with the locals fighting hard for the full period.

England.—Tewkesbury, Jennings, Shaw, Magee, O'Dowd, Campbell, Urwin, Smith, Cookson, Houghton and Barry.

Two Major Baseball League Leaders Improve Positions

Athletics Defeat Chicago; St. Louis Splits Twin Bill

Philadelphia at Head of American League See Lead Improved When Washington and New York Yankees Both Suffer Setbacks; Wes Farrell Pitches Cleveland to 3 to 1 Win Over Washington; Cardinals Gain Better Hold on National League Leadership by Breaking Even With Boston While Giants Lose to Pittsburgh

Wesley Ferrell, big right-handed mound ace of the Cleveland Indians, not only is winning his share of games on the hill, but he is batting well above the .300 mark and often hitting them when they count.

Yesterday he not only held the mighty Washington Senators to seven hits in a duel with Alvin Crowder but he won the game with a home run, his fourth of the season. Ferrell hit for the circuit in the seventh inning, breaking a 1-to-1 tie. In the next frame Morgan hit another home to make the final score 3 to 1.

Wesley's brother, Rick, who catches for the St. Louis Browns, also hit a homer yesterday to assume one of the featured roles in another surprising baseball tale. His four-bagger aided the Browns in winning the second victory of the day over the New York Yankees. St. Louis took the first game 9 to 7, despite Babe Ruth's thirteenth homer. Lou Gehrig's fourteenth and one by Lazzeri to break a nine-game losing streak, then they continued their clouting to win the second, 8 to 2.

ATHLETICS WIN
The defeats of Washington and the Yankees put the Philadelphia Athletics in a safer place than they have held for the last few days. The A's won their fifth straight game, noosing out Chicago 6 to 1, and increasing their lead to four games. Boston won the other American League clash, beating Detroit 7 to 6 by means of Earl Webb's homer in the seventh inning.

Among the National League leaders the situation also became less tense as St. Louis improved its position with an even break in a double-header with the Boston Braves. Frankhouse and Brandt stopped the Cards with five hits to win the first game, 6 to 0. They got the same number of blows off Seibold, but young Pepper Martin came through with a homer behind Grimes' equally good hurling and St. Louis won the second, 1 to 0.

With a chance to register a gain, the New York Giants lost a half game when their defense fell apart in the eleventh inning of a battle with the Pittsburgh Pirates, two errors in the seventh enabled the Pirates to overcome the effects of Grantham's four misplays earlier in the game and win 5 to 4. Philadelphia kept on even terms in its private race with Pittsburgh for sixth place by beating Cincinnati 7 to 1. The Phillies piled up

MATE EQUALS TRACK RECORD TO WIN DERBY

A. C. Bostwick's Thoroughbred Captures $50,000 Event at Washington Park

Pittsburgher Second and Joey Bibb Third; Ran Mile and Quarter in 2.04 1-4

Washington Park, Chicago, June 22.—Mate, which conquered Twenty Grand in the Prekness, galloped to victory in the $50,000 American Derby at Washington Park Saturday.

The chestnut three-year-old, owned by A. C. Bostwick, Philadelphia, won in a thrilling, driving finish with Pittsburgher, gaining the victory by the narrowest possible margin by a nose.

Joey Bibb, a sensational allowance race performer in the west, furnished a stunning surprise by finishing third, three lengths ahead of Morphew, the third outsider to share in the rich purse.

Mate finished the mile and a quarter in 2:04 1/4, equalling the track record by Montana, two years ago, when he carried only ninety-eight pounds. The Bostwick entry had the heavy impost of 126 pounds, top weight in the Derby. A crowd of 40,000 saw the race.

Mate, outstanding favorite, rewarded his backers with $4.50 to win, $3.84 to place and $3.10 to show.

The race had a gross value of $59,676, with $48,675 going to Owner Bostwick, the thirty-one-year-old millionaire sportsman.

LOCAL KINSMEN CLUB FOUNDED FIVE YEARS AGO

R. P. Butchart Only Honorary Member of Victoria Branch of Organization

On February 18, 1926, a number of members of the Kinsman Club of Vancouver arrived in the city and during the course of that day interviewed a group of local business and professional men, promulgating the aims and objects of kinsmanship. On the evening of that day an organization meeting was held and thirteen young citizens signed their names to an application for a charter. The application was accepted by the national executive, then with headquarters at Winnipeg, and in the course of a few weeks the seed of kinsmanship began to sprout and flourish in Victoria. A large proportion of those who signed the first application are still on the roster of the club.

Alvin Helmsken was the first president of the club, and later was appointed to the post of district governor of the western division of the association. Dr. Stewart Kenning was the first vice-president; Dr. Stanley Miles, secretary; Archie Smith, assistant secretary; George Saul, treasurer; Harry Gilliland, international representative; Gordon Campbell and R. T. Hall, directors. Ted Corby was the first editor of the local bi-weekly bulletin.

ONE HONORARY MEMBER
The present membership numbers twenty-nine with R. P. Butchart as the club's only honorary member. This honor was conferred upon him some years ago, the local club feeling that his untiring efforts and abounding generosity as a citizen of this community were worthy of the highest esteem and respect. The Kinsman Club of Victoria is proud to have him among the names on the roll of the club.

Among those appearing in the records as past president in chronological order are Alvin Helmsken, Gordon Campbell, Walter Miles, R. A. Wootton and Stanley Miles.
The executive officers of the club for the present year are: President, Ted Corby; vice-president, Ernie Stock; secretary, Bill Dillibough; treasurer, Herb Sabiston; directors, Archie Smith, Bill Clark and Ron Whittington, and editor of "Kinsman Bulletin," Archie Smith.

HEADQUARTERS HERE
As the result of arrangements made at the last district convention in Chilliwack in April, Victoria will be the district headquarters for the term of 1931-1932. Officers of the district body will be taken from the membership of the local group and district council meetings will be held in this city during the term of office. The first president of the Victoria Club has been nominated to fill the post of No. 5 District Governor.

During the last five years the local club of the association has been identified with various service work projects. The club lent considerable assistance at the time a drive was made in the city for the collection of funds for the building of the Queen Alexandra Solarium at Mill Bay. Each Christmas aid has been given to needy families throughout the city. The support of the club has been extended to various projects sponsored by the local Service Clubs Council, two of its members also having served in the capacity of secretary on that representative body. For the last six months the club has had a seat on the board of the local Children's Aid Society. Mr. Stock representing the Kinsmen. The club recently staged a miniature golf tournament for the purpose of raising funds for charitable work.

Thrills, suspense, excitement and shudders will be found in the programme of the first Pacific Northwest motorcycle rodeo to be staged at the Horse-show Building recently built by the City of Victoria at the Willows Fair Grounds at a cost of $45,000. The Kinsman Club of Victoria will present the Victoria Motorcycle Club in what will be one of the most unique exhibitions ever staged in this part of the continent on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For the last three months the members of the motorcycle club have been carrying out rehearsals of the various feats, stunts and acts, which are now in such a state of perfection and patrons of the rodeo are assured of ample excitement. The rodeo will take place in the show ring of the building some eight feet below the level of the box seats and the general admission seats are tiered up from this level, which insures a complete view of the performance in a position at a safe distance from the performers. Those who have seen the spectacular riding of motorcycleists in the movies will now be afforded an opportunity of witnessing the hair-raising demonstrations. The acrobatic antics of trapeze artists, the child's play compared with the gymnastic capers of three men on one motorcycle traveling at a fast rate of speed.

Attempts will be made during the performance to break the world's long-distance broad jump record of sixty-three feet for motorcycles. It will be realized that for a rider and bike to jump that distance, colossal nerve and first-class fitness of machine and man is required. Specially geared machines have been "tuned up" to attain speed and reliability required to get the maximum distance of the jump.

SIDE CAR RIDING
Machines of all makes, types and specifications are employed in a number of the acts. In one of the demonstrations of riding skill machines equipped with sidecars will be used. Riders will operate their machines while sitting in the sidecar and the sidecar wheel will be in the air. This feat requires a perfect balance, as too much weight put in the wrong direction would completely overturn the machine, with possible serious injury to the operator.
Drills, employing twenty riders, will be staged. There will also be formations similar to cavalry rides and squad drills. A special revue will be staged using only the lighting of the performing machines for illumination. These machines are all specially equipped with lights and in action present a very picturesque sight.

MOTORCYCLE POLO GAME
At each performance a polo game on motorcycles will take place. This will be a competitive event, there being a prize for the winning team. The game is staged with four players mounted on each side and the rules of play are a combination of football and rugby. Spectators are assured some big thrills as the machines avoid each other by a hairbreadth through the expert manipulation of the riders. Tilt-the-bucket, cave-man soccer, the slow race, the barrel race, surf-board riding, hurdle jumping, dirt track racing and many other stunts will give the onlookers plenty of thrills.

The rodeo will be staged under the patronage of Premier Tolmie, Mayor Anson and Kinsman R. "Bob" P. Butchart. Facilities are provided to accommodate 2,200 people at each performance.
BAND TO PLAY
As an introduction to the performance each evening, selections will be played by the Victoria Girls' Band. They will also play during the show which will commence at 8:30 o'clock. The public is requested to come early in order to get comfortably seated and enjoy the fine music to be rendered by this group of young musicians.

MOTORCYCLE CLUB NOW ON FIRM BASIS

Group of Enthusiasts Enjoy Envious Reputation in Sports World

Was Originally Founded in Pre-war Days; Revived in Recent Years

The Victoria Motorcycle Club was originally founded in pre-war days. It disbanded on the outbreak of hostilities and many of its members went overseas, some as dispatch riders, some in the air force, while others found berths in the various units of the C.E.F. Soon after the war the club was again organized but it was not until recent years that it began to flourish and enjoy the prestige it now holds.

The object of the club is to promote the sport of motorcycling in all its phases, so that the novice as well as the experienced rider may derive some pleasure from the hobby. The club takes great pains in the organization of all its many activities. The smooth clockwise manner in which

Kinsmanship Is Dominion-wide

Organization Started From Small Gathering in Hamilton, Ont., Eleven Years Ago; Observance of Founder's Night by Thirty-one Clubs Across Canada is Annual Event; Aims to Promote Fellowship Among Young Business Men

The Association of the Kinsman Clubs of Canada, as it stands to-day, throughout the Dominion, is the outcome of an ideal in the mind of Harold Rogers, and was implanted there by his father, a Rotarian, who suggested there should be room for a service club for younger business men.

From the records at the disposal of the national historian of the association, the initial meeting took place in the Mandarin Inn, Hamilton, Ont., on January 22, 1920. There were fifteen young men present and they were addressed on the aims and ideals of a service club by E. V. Riley, then manager of the Standard Bank of Canada in that city and a well known figure in Hamilton for a number of years.

INAUGURAL MEETING
A notice was sent out for a meeting on February 6, 1920, which was to be an inaugural meeting. Minutes of these meetings were not, unfortunately, kept, but it is found that Rogers were present on March 29, under the name of the Young Men's Business Club and again on April 8, under the name of the Kinsman Club. It has, therefore, been ascertained from various sources that the inaugural meeting was held on or about March 20, 1920.

With the removal of some of the Hamilton Kinsmen to different parts of the Dominion and their zeal for the idea, they preached the good word, and from that, similar clubs have been organized until at the present time there are thirty-one clubs in the association extending from British Columbia in the west to Quebec in the east, with a total membership of over 1,200.

One of the outstanding ceremonial functions staged each year by the various clubs is the celebration of the date of the origin of the association. On March 20 each year, all Kinsmen in Vernon, Chilliwack, Vancouver, Mission, Duncan, Victoria, Regina, Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, North Battleford, Lloydminster, Edmonton, Drumheller, Calgary, Lethbridge, Kenora, Winnipeg, Brandon, Montreal, Ottawa, Peterborough, Oshawa, Toronto, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Simcoe, Chatham, Border Cities, Kitchener, Waterloo and Berlin gather at the festive board and do honor to "Hal" Rogers, the founder, and renew the pledges of membership. The time of meeting in each city or town is synchronized, the entire programme being chronologically co-ordinated. This celebration, "National Observance Night," is looked forward to each year by every member, who realizes that on this occasion his fellow "kin" all join its sporting functions, such as hill climbs and reliability trials are run, has drawn unstinted praise from impartial outside observers.

ASSIST POLICE
That the public appreciates the significance of the Victoria Motorcycle Club in the community is evidenced by the fact that its members are invited to assist the police on parade days such as May 24 and July 1. Officials of other organizations are alive to capabilities of the club members, too, for very often the club is called upon to supply marshals or stewards for cycle road races or foot road marathons.

At the head of the motorcycle club affairs sits Reg Williams in the president's chair. On his right is Keith Dorman, the hard-working secretary-treasurer. Bill Dillabough is vice-president. Under the leadership of these aggressive young men, the club, the biggest and best organized of its kind in western Canada, looks forward to much enjoyable future activity.

together in one great union of fellowship around the common board.

SPIRIT OF OBSERVANCE NIGHT
The following, from the pen of a member of the Toronto Club, sums up in poetic phrase the spirit prevailing on National Observance Night:

We meet as one; across the open spaces
We join our hands, and make the chain complete.
Our hearts go out to all the distant places,
Where, in this solemn hour, our brothers meet.
We grasp the knots of sentiment that tether
More than a thousand souls to one ideal.
We rise and sing the songs we love together,
And stand—elated—in our common weal.
The sun is hovering o'er the western ocean,
East of the Rockies twilight shadows fall,
The evening breeze sets northern trees in motion,
And night has long had grip on Montreal.
Sun, moon and stars attend the thrilling second—
Let clocks strike as they will, the time's begun
When hours are by another measure reckoned
As over thirty gavels fall as one.

They disappear—the miles that keep us parted.
We sit, in spirit, round a common board.
They disappear—the differences that started.
Ere kinsmen made us all of one accord.
One mighty moving spirit now invites us.
To see what vision through the years has done.
One land, one hope, one mighty cause unites us.
Beneath one flag, one crest, we meet as one.

OBJECTS OF KINSMEN
The primary object of the association and the motive which prompts and actuates the membership, is personal development—development as effective and ethical social working political Canadians; social and ethical in everyday work and relationships, and intelligent, rational and alert in attitude and action respecting all phases of civic and governmental institution. In other words membership in a Kinsman's Club does not only

PRIZE-GIVING AT BRENTWOOD WELL ATTENDED

Staff Changes and Appointments to School Board of Governors Announced

B. C. Nicholas and Colonel A. A. Sharland Give Addresses

Speech day and prize-giving at Brentwood College Saturday afternoon was attended by several hundred people, including parents of the boys and many friends. The swimming and rowing events provided some keen competition and the enthusiasm displayed by the contestants was reflected in the unreserved interest of the spectators.

V. Round, the acting headmaster, and Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Curtis, welcomed the guests in the absence of the headmaster, H. F. Hope, and his wife, in the Old Country Mr. Curtis, who is chairman of the board of governors, presided at the formal programme, the speakers being B. C. Nicholas and Col. A. A. Sharland, whose appointment to the board of governors was announced on Saturday.

The ceremony took place in the gymnasium of the school following which tea was served in the dining hall and veranda, decorated with spruce and June flowers for the occasion.

VALUE OF TRADITION

Mr. Nicholas was the first speaker at the prize-giving, emphasizing the value of tradition to a school. He recalled a visit to Cheltenham School when he was in England last year, saying he had been conscious of the influence of its extraordinary historical associations on the boys. Since returning to Vancouver Island, contrasts had suggested themselves, but not always detrimental to the island institutions, he was glad to say.

Because it demonstrated the interest and enthusiasm of the boys themselves, Brentwood Chapel, built entirely by the boys, gave even a greater inspiration in some respects than the beautiful old chapel at Cheltenham, he said. The boys of the English school, of course, had certain advantages in that the institution had its roots far back in the centuries. Great names in history were reminders of men who had passed through its halls. The Vancouver Island school had the advantage, on the other hand, of less artificiality and more individualism, coupled with a closer contact with nature and a better physical environment. If the boys could not draw inspiration from tradition, they could draw it from the eternal hills and a view of the landscape unparalleled anywhere in the world.

"If the boys of Cheltenham and Winchester have the advantage of old traditions, the boys here are the creators of their school's tradition and upon them the greater responsibility devolves," he said, making special reference to the feat of Brentwood in putting up "four striplings" to defeat all comers in competition for the grand challenge cup in canoeing.

YOUTH IS JUDGE

Courage, faith, a spirit of loyalty and honor, and industry were the ideals which schools should foster as the foundations of citizenship, he said in conclusion. The older people were on trial before youth to-day, and while their example had not been very good, it had shown youth what not to do.

Col. Sharland also discussed the tradition of the school, speaking particularly to the boys themselves. In seeking an ideal it was natural, he said, to look to the older public schools. Brentwood still had to establish its position. It was not enough, however, to rest on the traditions of the older schools. Their own history must be made. Co-operation, loyalty and sportsmanship in relation with their school would fit them with the right qualities to deal with their fellowmen later.

During their school life and after, visited British Columbia last year. For six weeks last autumn she did some water supplies. She has been obliged to make hundreds of calls and, while enthusiastic in her work, states that it has been very fatiguing. After much inspecting in the Vernon district she has announced that in her opinion there are extensive supplies of domestic water than can be reached by wells. The Kelowna district, she states, is slightly drier.

Miss Penrose will proceed from Vernon to Salmon Arm where it is reported that eighty requests for her diving work are on file. After completing her work there she is to proceed through the Cariboo as far as the Peace River district. A native of Cogswell, England, the home of water divers, Miss Penrose came to the United States two years ago and, after a trip to Honolulu, they should have in the back of their minds the honor and reputation of their school. According to this standard they should govern themselves, he said.

TRIBUTE PAID

Resignation of John Grant from the staff was announced by Mr. Curtis in the course of his remarks, when he paid tribute to both Mr. Grant and Mr. Round, who had "taken over" when Mr. Hope went to England. A double responsibility had fallen on Mr. Round, owing to the illness of Mr. Grant, he said. The departure of Mr. Grant would be a great loss to the school.

Mr. Curtis announced that a preparatory school for boys between the ages of eight and fourteen years would be established.

Retirement of Norman Yarrow from the board of governors and the addition of William Todd and Col. Sharland was also announced.

Telegrams from Mr. Hope, now at Eastbourne, in England, and from D. J. Angus, one of the governors, expressing best wishes on speech day, were read.

Silent tribute was paid to the late Tony Farrer, a former Brentwood boy. The prize winners were as follows: School tennis doubles championship (McGowan Challenge Cup)—Cameron and Mitchell. MAN KILLED IN STRIKE CLASH IN PENNSYLVANIA

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 22.—One man was killed and seven others injured in a clash early to-day between striking coal miners and deputy sheriffs seeking to enforce a court order prohibiting picketing of the Wildwood mine near here of the Butler Consolidated Coal Company. About 100 shots were exchanged between the ten deputies guarding the mine and a crowd of about 250 men and women, who marched on the mine in defiance of the court order secured a week ago. The man killed was a striker. Among the injured is one of the mine guards. Plans for the march were announced at a mass meeting yesterday called by the National Miners' Union, which is directing the strike. William S. Foster, national secretary of the Trades Union League, was reported to have led the marchers.

PRISONER SLIGHTLY INJURED

Truro, N.S., June 22.—Edward Cassidy, nineteen-year-old Westville youth who is being taken to Calgary to answer a murder charge, was slightly injured yesterday when the car in which he was being brought from Westville to Truro was ditched. He was not seriously hurt, however, and in charge of an Alberta officer was placed aboard a train for Alberta.

Piles All Gone

Without Salves or Cutting
Itching, bleeding, protruding piles go quickly and don't come back, if you remove the cause. Bad blood circulation in the hemorrhoidal veins causes piles by making the affected parts weak, flabby, almost dead. Salves and cutting fail because only an internal medicine can actually correct these conditions. Dr. J. S. Leonard's discovered a real internal Pile remedy. After prescribing it for 1,000 patients with success in 980 cases, he named it HEM-POID. McFarlane and Vancouver Drug Stores say one bottle of HEM-POID Tablets must and your Pile misery or money back. (Adv.)

Will You Need an Income of $100 a Month?

Some one has said that the sweetest words in the English language are "Enclosed please find cheque."

How would you like to have $100 a month mailed to you regularly after you reach age 60, 65, 70 or 75, whichever you select? You would like to have it now, perhaps, and if you have the capital sum needed to buy such an income the Canada Life will guarantee it to you at once. But if you haven't the capital, you can arrange now that you will have that income later on.

Suppose you are earning $100 a month—it may be $150, $200 or more. Whatever it is there is a part of that income you want continued.

If you were not earning, how much would continue? That is, how much of your income would go on, no matter if you earned a salary or drew pay or not? For many people the answer would have to be: "Not very much!"

It takes $20,000 capital well invested to bring in $100 a month, but under the Canada Life plan you do not need to save $20,000 in order to make sure of an income of that amount.

The Canada Life with $188,000,000 of well-invested assets will guarantee to continue that part of your income you must have later on for living expenses, say $100 a month. And the Canada Life may have to state the income going at any time to you or not.

expand the members' capabilities, but inspire them to be and become more charitable, efficient, ethical and intelligent neighbors, workmen and citizens, ready, able and willing to effectively, fairly and intelligently play the game of life, and whatever the event, to meet it as a gentleman.

The association has during the last eleven years carved for itself a place in the community life of the cities and towns where the organization of such pursuits as the organizing of boys' council work; the establishment of children's playgrounds; the furnishing of equipment, turnouts, mounds and dental services to underprivileged children, orphan asylums, hospitals, mental institutions; the supplying of food stuffs and clothing to the poor and needy; the building of sunshine camps and hospitals; the collecting of funds for use in the combating of tuberculosis; the promulgating of preventive medicine ideas; bringing educational speakers to communities; co-operating with civic and municipal bodies in the betterment of the community during times of business depression and many other laudable activities are all down on the rolls of the books of the association.

WHILE there are no restrictions regarding nationality of the club's members, the association is entirely only in Canada and is the only service club devoting the efforts of its membership entirely to affairs strictly within the Dominion. This nationally-minded group of young business men has succeeded in establishing branches in small towns that international service organizations have overlooked as good ground for the kind of community service work. In this the association has done a great beneficial work of lasting good to Canada.

Active membership in the association consists of young men between the ages of twenty-one and forty years, of good character and community standing, engaged in recognized lines of business, agricultural, institutional and professional life. Each member upon entrance into the organization promises to conscientiously attempt to the best of his ability to promote fellowship and good feeling among his fellow kinsmen and those with whom he associates; to promote the feeling of international your family. There are no years of waiting; if the member "comes round" suddenly, that is, should you become totally disabled or should you die. See what happened in the following cases:

He was thirty years of age and everything was going well until he got tuberculosis. Then he lost his earnings, but his Canada Life Policy paid him $100 a month. Four years later he returned to work and said: "That income saved my life, gave me new courage, enabled me to pay my way—a blessing, indeed."

An old man came into our office. He was alone in life—home, family all gone; unable even to pay his board bill. He had but one asset left, a Canada Life Policy, taken years before in order to protect his family, he said. He was astonished to find that the cash value and profits were large enough to buy him $100 a month annuity for life.

Another man bought a policy which guaranteed to pay him $100 a month when he reached age 65, but he died at age 30. His widow has been drawing the $100 a month for years, and she says it seems as though he brings it to her each month.

We have hundreds of similar cases we could mention. There is but one sure way. How can you provide a similar income is told in our booklet "Getting the Income You Want." Why income going at any time to you or not, send for it now?

goodwill and always uphold the constituted authority in the government under which he lives.

PROMOTE FELLOWSHIP

The constitutional object of the association is to promote and direct fellowship among young business and professional men within the Dominion of Canada, to the end: That they may be improved and educated in woodwork, business and professional methods and ethics; that the interest of each in the welfare of his community may be stimulated; that constitutional authority may be upheld; that a spirit of true Canadian nationalism and patriotism as a nation within the British Empire be fostered and stimulated; and that unity of thought and purpose throughout the Dominion of Canada be established.

STORMS SWEEP SOUTH ONTARIO

Toronto, June 22.—Cutting a wide swath across southern Ontario, a torrential wind and rainstorm swept parts of Toronto late Saturday, endangering many lives, causing considerable damage and ending a torrid heat wave which had held the province in its grip for two days.

Sarnia and Glencoe reported high winds and heavy rain. Galt experienced a virtual wall of water, which held up cars for a time. At Brantford the wind carried away a footbridge. Nearly everywhere trees were felled by the wind.

An overcast sky and a sudden gale whipped Lake Ontario to fury at Toronto. There were a few drops of rain. In the Hamilton district the windstorm assumed almost hurricane proportions. Three barns were razed in Glanville Township. Oscar Smith, owner of one of them, and his son, had a narrow escape when the structure collapsed as they stood in it.

MURDER IN CHICAGO

Chicago, June 22.—Jacob Kaufmann, said by officials to have aided them in a grand jury investigation under way here into alleged labor racketeering among motion picture operators, was shot to death early yesterday. Assistant State Attorney Charles Bellows immediately ordered the arrest of Thomas Maloy, head of the Chicago Motion Picture Operators' Union, and five other men.

KNIGHTS ENJOY VICTORIA VISIT

Local Columbus Council Hosts to Party From Mainland

The local council of the Knights of Columbus were hosts to a large number of visiting knights and their lady friends at a reunion of the district council, held yesterday at their hall on Government Street, when the major degrees were conferred on very large class of candidates which occupied the entire afternoon, and concluded with a banquet in the evening at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

M. Steele, the grand knight of Victoria council, acted as toastmaster, and after having done full justice to the excellent menu provided, an interesting programme was carried out.

The toast, "The Pope and the King," which was coupled, was ably responded to by the Rev. C. E. Evans, rector of St. Andrew's Cathedral. Mayor Anascomb and Mrs. Anascomb were present, and His Worship added his note of praise to the work carried on by the organization and the loyal people of Victoria.

M. Leo Stevens, district deputy, and state deputy-elect, under whose directions the work was carried out during the day, spoke briefly to the toast of "The Order," but introduced as long a number of prominent knights from the council on the mainland. Miss Josephine Charlebois delighted the audience with a song rendered in her usual captivating style. The toast of visiting knights was responded to by representatives of the visiting council.

Miss Vivian Colbert delighted all present with two songs, which elicited much praise. "The Ladies" was responded to by Mrs. J. D. Thompson, on behalf of the Catholic Women's League. Miss Eulalia O'Neill, for the Junior Catholic Women's League and Mrs. M. A. Fletcher for the St. Louis College Welfare League. "New Members" was responded to by the Rev. Father Lawless, principal of the St. Louis College.

A feature of the evening's entertainment was the singing of a group of community songs by the "young lights" of Vancouver council.

The singing of "O Canada" brought to a close what was acknowledged by all present as the most enjoyable of the many similar affairs held by the Knights.

LAWYER'S FEES CAUSE DISPUTE

Whether the Supreme Court registrar can legally include, in a lawyer's bill of costs, a sum which represents the fees of the registrar, is being considered by the British Columbia Court of Appeal today, in the hearing of the appeal of Enfante versus Enfant.

A. G. Dundas Crux, a Vancouver lawyer, was the appellant in fact, having been the solicitor for William Infante in an action for $12,000 against Catherine Enfant, his wife and business partner. Crux, K.C., told the court that the issue had been settled by the Enfantes "behind the backs of the lawyers" and that Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald had found that collusion had marked the settlement, as a means of avoiding payment of fees to Mr. Crux. He had ordered an item of $1,000 for services struck from the bill of costs.

The taxed bill of costs had not been contested and he argued that, because of the omission, no court had authority to go behind the registered certificate and examine the bill upon which the certificate was based.

For the respondent Gordon Sloan Crux, the no collusion existed, that the action had never come to trial, and that Mr. Crux should seek his fees and costs from his client, not from money paid into court before judgment was rendered. Sloan argued that the action was proceeding this afternoon.

Rain Plays Havoc With Amateurs In P.N.W. Golf Event

Tacoma, Wash., June 22.—A steady downpour of rain and a wind which played havoc with early starters in the thirty-six-hole qualifying round of the Pacific Northwest amateur golf tournament at Fairview, today.

Ed Adams of Broadmoor, Seattle, had the best eighteen-hole score of the early morning finishers with a 40-38. Rev. Dr. W. G. Wilson, K.C., told the court that the issue had been settled by the Enfantes "behind the backs of the lawyers" and that Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald had found that collusion had marked the settlement, as a means of avoiding payment of fees to Mr. Crux. He had ordered an item of $1,000 for services struck from the bill of costs.

The taxed bill of costs had not been contested and he argued that, because of the omission, no court had authority to go behind the registered certificate and examine the bill upon which the certificate was based.

For the respondent Gordon Sloan Crux, the no collusion existed, that the action had never come to trial, and that Mr. Crux should seek his fees and costs from his client, not from money paid into court before judgment was rendered. Sloan argued that the action was proceeding this afternoon.

Children Vacate School Room On "Mad Dog" Cry

A handsome police dog followed a little girl into her classroom at St. James Douglas School this morning. It lay down quietly but the teacher soon noticed from around its mouth.

At 9:50 o'clock a call came to the school. A woman named Thomas Stevenson arrived on the scene. He found the children and several teachers in the corridor outside the room with the dog inside.

With the aid of a wire grid on the end of a stick he captured the animal easily and after finding to whom it belonged, took it home. While it did not seem mad, there was something the matter, he decided, and the rest was left to a dog surgeon. It is believed the animal was sick.

ASTRONOMERS FROM BRITAIN COMING HERE

Will Visit Saanich Observatory While in Canada to Study Eclipse Next Year

Victoria will be visited by a large party of British astronomers who will inspect the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Saanich, near Victoria, next year when they come to Canada to study the eclipse of the sun which will occur on August 31, 1932, and will be visible in Canada and Maine. The eclipse begins at sunrise north of St. John's, passes within five degrees of the North Pole, sweeps down across Hudson Bay, the Province of Quebec, northern Vermont, New Hampshire, and passes over the eastern portion of Massachusetts, and ends at sunset in the Atlantic Ocean.

A party of astronomers of the Royal Astronomical Society and their friends will come to Canada about July 22, 1932, in what might be suitably termed the "Eclipse Ship," which will land them in Montreal. As the eclipse is not due until the latter part of August, the astronomers will spend the interval to advantage.

Arrangements are being made for a visit to the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Saanich, where astronomers will see the largest telescope in Canada and the second largest operating telescope in the world. The 72-inch reflector is only surpassed by the 100-inch reflector of Mount Wilson Observatory in United States.

The British astronomers will be introduced to the wonders of Canadian astronomical equipment by Dr. J. S. Plaskett, B.A., D.S.C., F.R.S.C.

The journey will be continued via Seattle to San Francisco, where entertainment will be offered at the Berkeley University and at the Lick Observatory. After proceeding from San Francisco to Los Angeles a visit will be made to the Mount Wilson Observatory, noted for its marvellous telescopes, including the giant 100-inch of world-wide renown.

Two Words Missing In Affidavit, Judge Throws Out Case

Because the words "before me" at the foot of an affidavit leaving the subscription reading only "sworn at the city of Vancouver, E. K. de Beck," Judge McIntosh in court here today threw out the case of the Canadian Company of Vancouver for payment of his claim of $3,493 for reconstructing and finishing the new brokerage offices of Stobie, Forlong & Company, Government Street, which were completed in the fall of 1929.

The affidavit with the two words missing was the basis of the mechanics' lien taken upon the property here by Wright & Company for their work.

The defendants in the case were Malcolm Stobie and Charles J. Forlong, brokers of Toronto; R. P. Percival, J. A. Sayward, Lizzie Parker Newberry, Mary Parker Webb, all interested in the Victoria and Nanaimo Railway, Martin of Toronto, the trustee for Stobie, Forlong & Company; and Stobie, Forlong Assets Limited.

The judge took objection to the whole action on the ground that no lien had been filed and there was thus no cause of action because of the faulty wording.

H. A. Beckwith was counsel for Wright & Company here.

White Bear Mine Affairs Before Court

Affairs of the White Bear Mines, operating a gold mine in California, came before Mr. Justice Gregory of the Supreme Court here today when G. H. Ward of Victoria opened his case against Albert R. Ross and Robert Laird of Nanaimo, directors of the company, who were defended by F. S. Cumfille of Nanaimo. The action was based on an application to make absolute a garnishee order.

James Edward Mackenzie of Nanaimo, secretary of the White Bear for 1929 and 1930, testified that A. R. Ross was the principal promoter of the enterprise, along with a man named Peits. For the mine in California and promising to Nanaimo company Ross was allowed 350,000 shares and $8,000 in cash. In reply to questions he testified that no meeting of shareholders as required by the statute had been held to pass on the issue of the stock.

E. H. M. Foot, counsel for Mr. Ward, told the court that his principal had a judgment against Mr. Ross, but there was a dispute as to the liability under the agreement whereby Mr. Laird as garnishee had agreed to purchase 100,000 White Bear shares for $5,500. This particular 100,000 shares were part of the block of 350,000 shares allotted to Mr. Ross as promoter. Mr. Foot said.

"If he did not hold a meeting, they cannot give title under the Companies Act," said the judge. "If you haven't had a statutory meeting and shares are thus not legally issued, you have no right. If the directors are guilty of a statutory offense, they are liable in an action against them on that basis."

The judge adjourned the case to allow the lawyers to get together on it and sent it to not, to have the whole issue retried.

Among the donors of grounds had been His Majesty, King George V, and the Duke of Devonshire and property worth $12,000,000 had been subscribed.

President W. C. Hudson had with him at the head table, in addition to the two team managers, John Russell and S. Davidson, president and secretary of the Dominion Football Association, respectively. Alderman James Adam and Lester Patrick.

To-day's Grain MarketsWINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)
Winnipeg, June 22.—Wheat: The local wheat market opened sharply higher this morning with prices scoring gains of from 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 above the close on Saturday. The strength was based on the strong cables and the strong stock market which again was based on President Hoover's statement that Washington was planning to declare a moratorium on debts for one year, which has created a better and more confident feeling in the world over, with many believing that the end of the disastrous depression is now in sight. However, the early bulge was not held.

Chicago market, which was 2 cents higher at the start, lost all its upturn, especially in the December month, and this helped to pull Winnipeg down. The market, breaking 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 from the early highs, again staged a fair comeback. There was good support in the market. Exporters were more active than they have been for some time. Overnight sales being placed at around 1,000,000 bushels of Manitoba.

Shorls were forced to cover, while investment buying by locals and through commission houses was greatly improved. Offerings were liberal, the pool taking advantage of the strength while local loans were also taking profits. Weather was more favorable, there having been a heavy rain over western Canada and parts of the spring wheat states, while more were promised.

There was a better demand for cash wheat and spreads were 1/4 to 1/2 better. Offerings continued light, flour trade continued generally quiet. Winnipeg futures close 1 1/2 to 3 1/2 higher.

Corn: Grain markets were firmer in sympathy with the strength in wheat, but trade volume was light. To export business was confirmed, but there were some bids in the market and probably a little business in barley and rye was worked.

Oats closed 1/4 to 1/2 higher; barley, 1/4 to 1/2 higher; and rye, 1/4 to 2 1/2 higher.

Flax: Sharper higher with a fair speculative demand, but crushers were not showing much interest. Offerings on the high side, closed 2 1/2 to 2 3/4 higher.

Liverpool close 1/4 to 1/2 higher, based on Winnipeg.

Three Seattle Prisoners Escape

Seattle, June 22.—Three prisoners saved their way through two sets of bars in the new King County Jail and slid down a rope of mattress coverings to the street, ten floors below, and freedom, Saturday.

The trio then separated and dashed away, just ahead of police summoned by a woman who telephoned the jail that "window washers" were climbing down the side of the building.

World Wheat Movement Increased During May

Shipments 30,000,000 Bushels Above Those of Same Period in 1930

Buying Slackened at Beginning of June; Stocks in Major Producers Reduced

Ottawa, June 22.—A sharp rise in the world movement of wheat marked the month of May, shipments being considerably in excess of the previous month's total and nearly 30,000,000 bushels higher than in May, 1930. In a report issued yesterday on the world wheat situation, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics points out clearances of Canadian wheat more than kept pace with this increased world movement, the Dominion's May export being practically double those during the same month of 1930.

World shipments exceeded 30,000,000 bushels a week in the first three weeks of the month under review and were thus the heaviest movement for any similar period in more than two years. "During the first half of June buying slackened appreciably," says the report, "and at present conducted on a hand-to-mouth basis. Port stocks are still low and declining further, but there are large supplies in storage, excessive $5,000,000 bushels higher than last year at this date. Proximity of the European and United States wheat harvests is also a restraining influence on large purchases. India has returned to the world market as a small exporter but, on the basis of last year's production and consumption, will be importing later in the season.

Reduction of existing stocks in the four major exporting countries for which statistics are available was considerably higher in May than in previous months of this year. Surplus available for export and carry over in the four countries amounted to 616,000,000 bushels.

OTTAWA STUDIES NEW WAR DEBTS MORATORIUM

Ottawa, June 22.—Should the proposal of President Hoover to postpone payment of interest and principal on inter-government debts, German reparations, etc., for one year be accepted, it would mean Canada would lose its share of the reparations payments from Germany, which amounts to around $4,000,000 a year. It is possible it would also apply to the payments on the amounts owed by the governments of Greece and Roumania to Canada of approximately $1,200,000 a year. Canada's own debts are all to private creditors and they would not come under the proposals. However, while directly the effect on Canada of the proposals are viewed here as not very important, the indirect effect in bettering the conditions over the world are looked on by parliamentarians for the most part as of great promise. Most members spoken to took the view it was but the first step and that a scaling down of the war debts must inevitably follow.

Since the government here will have to deal with the question, Premier Bennett declined to comment on it in the meantime. No doubt Parliament will be kept informed of the progress of negotiations arising out of the proposals.

OTHER PEOPLE'S VIEWS

happens that none of them holds executive offices. Among the actual strikers themselves the numbers of foreign-born are also very small. Regarding "walking back to town"—this is untrue as the men came back to town by C.N.R.

J. R. BERRY, For Strike Committee, J. STUART, Vice-Chairman, Workers' Alliance, 1415 Broad Street, Victoria, B.C., June 21, 1931.

THE SABBATH DAY To the Editor:—It is highly interesting and amusing to read the letters of "A Friend" and H. E. Beveridge regarding their quibbling over which day of the week should be the Sabbath. Can. and will they tell their readers how, when the world was created in six days of the week originated? The writer has a shrewd idea they are of a pagan origin. For instance, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Also do they really believe the world was created in six days of twenty-four hours. If so, how does it fit in with another statement, "A day with the Lord is a thousand years." Before the advent of the paleface our red brother was content with a day using the moon for his purpose. Julius and Gregory had no significance for him. There are more pagan rites and customs than what is known as Christianity than a good many people think. So why split hairs over such trivialities.

W. E. HILL, 819 Cook Street, City, June 20, 1931.

AIRPORT To the Editor:—It is ridiculous for the ratepayers to think of assuming such an obligation as the airport by-law will call for at the present time. An airport is purely a gamble with a hundred to one chance that it will not pay. If it were a "good thing," or even had a fair show of being a money-maker private enterprise would be very active in the airport business.

SWEEPSTAKES AND FRIENDS

To the Editor:—Now that the famous sweepstakes has been decided in my favor, I want you, Mr. Editor, and your readers to know that I owe a deep debt of gratitude. Without thought of personal gain he stood by me throughout. I know that nothing I can say or do can ever make up to him for the misunderstanding, misrepresentation, and slanderous things said about him, both privately and in the paper, to which I could not reply while the case was before the courts, but now I want to publicly thank him.

EDITH ORMISTON CANN, 548 Niagara Street, Victoria, B.C.

EXPORT LUMBER TRADE To the Editor:—How can we expect to sell lumber in the British market when the man who has been appointed by the government to represent B.C. interests in London flatly and publicly contradicts in the newspapers an alleged statement by a potential customer contained in a Montreal dispatch to Vancouver paper? (See Friday issue.)

There is no proof that Mr. Williamson said exactly what the dispatch alleges, and how does Mr. Brown know that no exporter raised the price? This is an example of poor salesmanship and diplomacy.

W. ROBERTSON, R.R. 3, Victoria, B.C.

RELIEF STRIKE To the Editor:—May I encroach upon a few lines of your valued daily to put forth a few phases of the relief strike, which, I think, the general public are not aware of?

First, we were not cognizant of the rate of wages until we were on the site of operations, when we were informed that the remuneration was to be $1 per day for eight full hours and board; also that we were to get twelve days' work with a two weeks' interval in town, and empty hope of any city relief before again returning to camp. I won't pass judgment upon how good or bad the board was; that passed all comprehension. But I should like to state that it is impossible for a single man to live two weeks in town on $12, less tobacco money, etc.

The price of a room is prohibitive; at the very least, from $5 to $7 for two weeks. Now, I think that you will acknowledge the fact that there is not much left for victuals, let alone the fact that most of these men have been on the $1.40 per day, five-day per week plan, nearly all winter, and boots, socks, overalls, etc., were never yet produced to last indefinitely.

On the second day of our arrival, it was decided to call a strike for shorter hours and better conditions, etc., but as our worthy city council could not see things from the same viewpoint, the camp was closed up tight by the city officials on Thursday last.

On Friday evening a special meeting of the workers' executive was called to offer suggestions to the city council, so that an agreement beneficial to all might result.

After a great deal of discussion, pro and con, one of the executives suggested that the camp be reopened on this basis: Four hours' work per day for three weeks on and one week off, at the rate of $1 per day and board. It was pointed out to His Worship the Mayor that this would be four hours' real work for honest wages, instead of eight hours dodging the foreman and sitting in the shade, which is only assured by the princely sum.

The meeting at last broke up, when the council informed us that they would give this suggestion every consideration, and inform us of the verdict as soon as possible. In the meantime the camp was to remain closed until a settlement was reached.

While the meeting was in session, the city relief officer and Chief of Police Hentley were doing their utmost to organize a crew to break the strike. After a day's work and threats that we should be incarcerated in the city jail if we did not accept the old conditions, with the exception of three weeks at camp instead of two, as formerly, about eight or ten have gone back. Not bad when one considers that great pension, hunger, and cold have been endured.

It shows that there must be something wrong somewhere.

I should now like to ask the citizens of Victoria why the police force can be, and is being, used as a strike-breaker and a labor recruiter? Also why has the camp been opened when no reply has been received from the City Fathers? And again, why are the city council so anxious to contradict themselves by sending men out to do that which they positively state to be unnecessary work? Very queer!

PLANS FILED SHOW CAMPBELL RIVER PROJECT

B.C. Electric Railway Company Limited Finds 157,500 Horsepower Available

Three Power Houses and Four Dams Required to Develop Island's Largest River

The British Columbia Electric Railway Limited has ascertained that the maximum economical power available from Campbell River will be 157,500 horsepower, with a continuous load of 119,200 horsepower.

Plans filed by the company with the Provincial Water Board on Saturday show the details of development proposed to be undertaken in a gradual programme. An application for a water license will be filed shortly and hearings on the application and the proposed plans will be held within a few weeks, according to Major J. C. McDonald, Provincial Water Controller.

The plans call for installation at Buttles Lake of a temporary dam ten feet in height, to assure maintenance of the existing high water level of the lake. When the full power of the river is to be developed this dam would be replaced with a concrete structure thirty-two feet high, which would involve a major alteration of the level of the lake and affect surrounding park and timber property.

THREE POWER PLANTS The power of this river will be developed at three large plants and will require construction of four dams. The head or fall of water proposed to be made available would aggregate 550 feet.

The largest unit is proposed to be placed at Elk Falls, where a maximum of 93,500 horsepower, with a continuous output of 71,000 horsepower, would ultimately be harnessed. The first temporary project at this site would only provide 16,000 horsepower.

LONG WATER TUNNEL Lodore Falls near Forbes Landing on Lower Campbell Lake would deliver a peak load of 45,000 horsepower, with a continuous output of 34,000 horsepower. This plant would be supplied with water by a mile-long tunnel across a big bend of the river.

The smallest plant is proposed to be located at Trout Lake, half-way between Elk Falls and the sea, where 14,000 continuous horsepower will be obtained, with a maximum output of 18,000 horsepower.

Hungary is such a self-sustaining country that salt is the only food product it is obliged to import.

The first census taken in England was in 1801.

REDS PLAN TO SET UP SOVIET IN SOUTH CHINA

Foochow, China, June 22.—Refugees fleeing from the pillaging bands of Communists in northern Fukien province, said here today the Reds intended to establish a Soviet state in that region.

The invaders had captured virtually all towns in the district, refugees said, excepting Yenching, where troops halted them, thus preventing a direct advance on Foochow. Telegraph and mail services were interrupted, isolating the region. Communists, they said, had confiscated all property title deeds as the initial step toward establishing a Soviet regime.

Meanwhile Chiang Kai-shek, generalissimo of Nanking's Nationalist government forces, was on his way from Nanchang personally to lead the fight against the Reds. It has been estimated more than 200,000 Nanking soldiers are ready to take the field.

Northern Fukien province, refugees said, was practically without protection, since officials and many civilians had fled to the coast for safety. When Communists arrived at Kienning-shan on the Kiangsi border, refugees said, they exacted a large amount of money from the public on threats of burning the city, then rounded up all soldiers left and executed them publicly, seeking to terrorize the populace.

The Handsome Man

Ray, as he talked, was studying the other man with just a little amusement, wondering what had brought this modern Beau Brummel—this British sheik as he characterized him—to an American construction camp.

When Sir George in his turn began asking questions about the camp, however, Browne looked twice at this man who he had decided, at first glance, was one of those who made his way in the world by looks and influence, and had left grey matter out of the count. This fellow had grey matter. How much Browne could not yet say, but he had it, if he chose to use it, and beside it those looks and that height! Browne mentally shrugged his shoulders, as he put MacBeth's private and special report in a large and official envelope.

He dusted himself and his hat carefully, threw his working coat across the small room and landed it squarely on the hook he had selected, washed his hands, smoothed down his hair and declared himself ready.

Roberta not being in sight yet, Sir George detained Ray Browne as the latter prepared to go forth and search for the car. "I say, Browne, stay where you are. Miss MacBeth will be here just as soon as you don't run meet her. I'd like a bit of information about the payroll trouble the MacBeth Construction Company has had, either here or at the New York end."

"There was some little rumour at the New York end. I wouldn't really dignify it by the name of trouble."

"Yes, Mr. MacBeth seems to have the wind up about it."

Ray Browne grinned and nodded. "Funny! Must be because he's feeling a bit low."

Roberta drew forward, and Browne hastened toward her. Sir George took his time. He sauntered past the groups of foreign laborers, taking them all in his survey as a group first, and then patiently trying to memorize a few individual faces. It might be necessary, if there should ever be trouble, to remember some, at least, of the workmen on the inside.

He heard an exclamation and looked up, startled to see Browne rush toward Roberta. Sir George strode forward, he could see that her face was white and that her left hand was covered with blood. He ran and reached her a second before Browne.

"What happened?" he asked, as he put his arm about her and lifted her from the car.

Roberta drew back. "I'm not going to faint. Someone—shooting at rabbits—winged me."

Browne gave an exclamation and bent over the hand which Sir George was examining. "Ploughed across your fingers," Sir George announced. "Painful, but not dangerous. Of course, you have first aid stuff here, don't you?"

"Surest thing you know," Browne told him. "Come along, Miss MacBeth, we'll have you fixed up in no time." Sir George lifted her in his arms, and strode toward the shack, followed by the disgruntled Ray, who was sure he was quite as strong and could have given much to have shown Roberta that strength.

In Browne's office Roberta was placed in a chair and then given a glass of water by Browne, who washed the hand and gave it first aid treatment. Sir George, who felt he could have made a much better and quicker job of the bandage than Browne, asked Roberta where she had been when she was shot. On receiving her answer that it was on the rough road that led from the main highway to the construction camp, he left with a murmured statement that he would come back in a moment.

Browne raised his eyebrows at Roberta and asked, "What does he think he's going to do?"

"I don't know," said Roberta, who was feeling rather limp. "Probably thinks he can get the man, but he won't. I heard him scramble off among the bushes."

"A fool! Might have murdered you."

"Yes, but I don't think that was what he meant to do, and I'm glad he got away. Run along and see that Beauty Sandison comes to no harm. I'm responsible to my father and aunt for him."

Browne did so somewhat reluctantly, divided between the desire to stay with the girl and the feeling that as engineer in charge at this end he must see that he was not left out of anything that the other man started. It was a rotten thing that had happened to the girl, but he could not have Sir George starting any trouble or excitement at his camp.

When he stepped outside, he stepped into practically an empty camp, save for a man on guard who told him excitedly in broken English that the big fellow had taken all the men off the job to hunt the man who had shot at Miss MacBeth.

Browne hurried in the direction the laborer pointed out, to find the woods and the old quarry full of foremen and their men. Browne had to admit that this Beauty Sandison knew something about directing men. It was a quiet search, systematically going forward with very little noise or excitement. Sir George came up to Browne with an empty shell in his hand.

"Found this and the marks of a strange car over there." He pointed toward the entrance to the construction road. "Think we might as well call off the men now. If the fellow had a car he's miles away by this time. No use looking for him here."

Browne agreed, and gave the signal for the men to return, promising that he would take care, if anything came to light to-morrow, that Mr. MacBeth was immediately informed.

Sir George went to the car and stood so long before it that Browne, who had been consulting with a foreman, came up to him and paused.

"What next?"

The other man looked at him gravely and shook his head. "I don't want to spread about and I'd just as soon the girl didn't know it either. Look!" He pointed to his coat, which he had left so placed in the car that it looked as though someone was still sitting in it, and then indicated his bag, with which he had crowned the collar of the coat.

From a distance it would look like a man slumped down in the seat with his hat over his eyes. Browne bent over and saw to his astonishment that there were several holes in the hat and when he lifted the coat some small shot rattled to the floor of the car. He looked at his companion in consternation. "No wonder he made such a quick getaway. The fellow must have thought he had killed a man."

"Oh, absolutely!"

They walked without speaking toward the shack where the girl was. Roberta was ready to go.

"Find anything?"

"Only the shell," Sir George said hurriedly, with a warning glance at Roberta. "He fired in my pocket. Do you want to see it?"

Roberta shook her head with a little shudder. "I can still drive," she announced.

"Absolutely not. I can manage that car, I'm sure. Your father expects me to drive the road to-morrow, or next day, so I might as well have a little practice now."

Roberta made a gesture to stop him, but he was out of the doorway and striding toward the machine before she could speak. He took the car down and around the narrow turn, and came driving up to the shack, his eyes alight with pleasure. "Jolly good car! Goes like a bird. Hop in, Miss MacBeth, and barring a few mistakes about left and right hand drive, we'll have no trouble at all. But you will have to call off the tea party, Browne."

Browne nodded. Roberta opened her lips to protest again, took one look at the bright head, as he sat hatless before her, and climbed into the car. Sir George held out his hand to Browne.

"See you again soon."

"Sure. You come up any time. I'll be glad to show you about the place whenever you feel like it."

"I'm keen about it," he declared and somehow both Browne and Roberta believed in it. "Among the foreign workmen, I mean? Or was it an accident pure and simple that the shot went through your hat?"

"Oh, accident, pure and simple," Sir George assured her. "Nobody out here knows me well enough to hate me that much." He helped her out of the car and watched her go up the steps. Then he whistled, and he said to himself: "Then the man who fired the shot was a foreigner. At least he was a dark man." The girl had given that much away, even if she was, as Sir George suspected, trying to screen a shot at a foreigner. At least he she did that—he was tremendously curious to know.

He was wrong. Roberta did not know. If a suspicion had for a moment entered her mind she had driven it forth instantly. It was unthinkable, impossible to imagine that there had been something familiar about the man who had moved away so swiftly through the thicket. She wanted Sir George's assurance that she was wrong, yet somehow, his very decision that it was an accident left her still faintly troubled.

Sir George heard his stepmother exclaiming and Robert MacBeth's voice raising in wrath, and knew that Roberta had told them. He called August to take the car in, and went forward to answer the questions that were in store for him.

Robert MacBeth wanted the police notified at once and stormed for a moment at both Browne and Sir George for having omitted to do this.

Roberta pointed out to her father that their construction camp was just outside a small town, which was likely to have about three superannuated constables. The only man who could do any good would be the state police and there was still time to notify them.

MacBeth asked Roberta one or two questions, which elicited the fact that she had not seen anyone clearly, had only been aware, after the shot, of some one moving off over the little pile of rocks and rubbish, screened by bushes and small trees, at the entrance to the construction road. Fortunately, she had not lost her head, but had driven with her right hand.

If You Marry for Love, You Have Something of Which You Never Tire—If You Marry for Money, You Will Find That Its Joys Soon Pall—For Love Satisfies a Woman, but Money Never Does

A YOUNG woman asks: "What should a girl marry for, love or money?" Love, because if you are willing to work you can acquire money, and then if you have married for love you will have both love and money.

Love is a gift of the gods. You cannot make that, no matter how hard you try. No effort of the will can make you thrill at the touch that is repulsive to you or give flavor to kisses that are dust and ashes on your lips. So, if you marry for money and lose it, you have nothing left.

If you marry for love you have something of which you never tire, something that keeps your heart alive, something that keeps your interest in life fresh and vivid and alert, something that grows more and more precious as the years go by. No woman ever grew satiated with love. No woman ever grew weary of loving and being loved.

If you marry for money you will find that its joys soon pall upon you. You will find that one dinner is like another, one frock like another and that there is not much difference between automobiles or country houses or town houses and that you can be just as much bored in one place as another. The very knowledge that you can have everything you want will keep you from wanting anything.

Love satisfies a woman. But money never does. Notice the faces of the women who have married for love, how soft and tender and beautiful they are, then look at the faces of the women who have married for money, and see how hard and bitter and cynical they have grown.

You will find many happy women who married for love and who have never had much else. They have always had to live in poor houses and wear shabby clothes and do their own housework, but love has turned their rented rooms into palaces. It has made their hand-me-downs royal robes, and every dinner they have ever cooked for their men has been done with the sacred joy of a priestess ministering before the altar.

But you never see a woman who has married for money who is happy. Invariably she is peevish and fretful and discontented. She may live in a house that has cost a fortune and that is furnished with the belongings of kings, but it is no home, no place where her soul can rest and be at peace, because there is no love in it. She may be clothed in silks and velvets and diamonds and furs but they cannot put warmth into her cold heart. She may have a checking account that will enable her to buy everything she wants in the world except the things she wants most of all—love, the comradeship of two hearts that really beat as one.

You see, my dear girl, marriage is a very queer business. And then some. It isn't just a trade in which one gives so much and gets so much and in which one is justified in making the best bargain one can for one's self. It is an affair in which it is literally more blessed to give than to receive, where one must give without counting the cost and in which those who put in the most get out the most.

Nor is there any way by which a woman, however astute she may be, can protect herself against the hazards of matrimony. Money won't do it. There are sacrifices of personal tastes and inclinations that have to be made alike by the millionaire and the pauper. Rich husbands are just as cantankerous and hard to get along with as poor husbands are.

The only thing that makes marriage worth while is love. It takes love, and lots of it, to sweeten the inevitable sacrifices that marriage demands. The only thing that makes marriage worth while is love. It takes love.

It takes the magic of love to bind a wife to her husband's faults and see in them nothing but adorable peculiarities; to keep her believing that a mediocre man is an oracle whose every utterance is worth repeating and to see in some day-windowed, bald-headed, middle-aged husband a sheik that she believes every flapper is trying to steal away from her. It takes the miracle of love to prevent any husband from getting on his wife's nerves and keep her out of the divorce courts.

It would even seem that heaven prospers the love marriage and puts a curse upon the mercenary marriage. Half the prosperous men and women you know will tell you that they married on a shoestring and that they scrimped and saved and worked together and lived on bread and cheese and kisses to get a start in the world.

They had love, and that glided their hardships, and they look back with joy to the battle they fought shoulder to shoulder. Nine-tenths of the women you know who marry for money have lost even that by the time they are middle-aged, and they are poor indeed, because they have nothing. They have not even the memory of love to comfort them.

So, my dear girl, don't be afraid to marry for love. Marry your poor young man and work up with him. That is the great American romance. DOROTHY DIX.

Making Eggs Stand on End

Have you ever tried to make an egg stand on end? It is hard to do, unless you know how.

A legend about Columbus tells us that while he was at a banquet after his first trip across the Atlantic, a man said to him:

"Can you make an egg stand on end?" asked Columbus.

"No," replied Columbus. "I will make it stand on end," said Columbus. "Suiting action to the word, the admiral cracked one end of an egg and set it on the table."

"Oh, that's easy!" said the other. "Yes," replied Columbus, "it is easy when someone shows you how."

There is another way of making an egg stand on end which Columbus might have used if he had known the secret.

Pick up a fresh egg and shake it until the "yolk" is loose and sinks to the blunt end of the egg. You cannot see the yolk through the shell, but if you shake the egg well and then place it on its blunt end, holding it up with your hand for two or three minutes, the yolk should sink to the bottom.

On the other night, I made a set of this, and at last succeeded in making the egg balance and stand on end. A very level surface is needed to perform this experiment. The egg I stood on end stayed up all night, and I saw it in that position when I awoke in the morning. It was cooked for my breakfast, and it tasted as well as an egg which had not been shaken up.

An egg treated in that way will stand on end because the yolk part is heavier than the white. When the yolk sinks to the bottom of the shell the centre of gravity is made lower. The same principle is used when lead is placed at the base of a salt-shaker. The yolk of an egg is not nearly so heavy as lead, so you may have trouble making the egg stand up even after you get the yolk to the bottom of the shell, but you can do it if you perform the test just right.
